$265,000,000 APPROPRIATED BY JAPAN FOR RELIEF WORK

Action Taken by Cabinet Represents the Greatest Measure for Aid in History of World Disasters—Foreign Success Is Pouring In
as Rebuilding Starts.

JAPANESE CROWDING VESSELS TO KOREA

Tokio Police Officially Put Dead in Capital City at 43,000, Dispatch Says—
Toll of Victims in Yokohama Near 100,000.

By the Associated Press.
OSAKA, Sept. 10.—The Japanese Government has appropriated 530,- 000,000 yen ($265,000,000) for relief work. This decision by the Cabinet at Saturday's sitting represents the greatest relief measure in the history of world disasters.

Already large sums have been appropriated from the Government's surplus, and it is intended to draw upon the national exchequer for further amounts, should the necessity arise.
In an emergency, the Government is planning to use the 120,000,000 yen ($60,000,000) minting profits as a last resort.

Foreign relief is pouring in, presaging a remarkably quick recovery.
In view of the extent of the tragedy,
it is officially reported now that more than 300,000 buildings in Tokio have been destroyed and more than half a million people are homeless.
Indications are that for the whole devastated area the death toll exceeds 100,000. A simple funeral has been planned for the four members of the royal family who were killed.

60,000 Bodies Recovered in Tokio and Yokohama.

PEKIN, Sept. 10.—The Japanese
News Agency reports from Osaka
that the Tokio police officially place
the dead in Tokio at 43,000.

By the Associated Press.
TOKIO, Sept. 10.—Sixty thousand bodies had been recovered in Tokio
and Yokohama up to and including today, and the police estimate that 100,000 persons have been treated for wounds and sickness as a result of the earthquake. A landing party
from the U. S. S. Destroyer Huroon arrived at the port of the American naval hospital at Yokohama.
A total of 23,000 persons were killed and 40,000 injured in Yokohama, and 10,000 killed in the Hasona district as the result of the earthquake and fire, according to an official statement issued here yesterday. Seventy-one per cent of the city of Tokio has been destroyed,
the statement said.

The Tokio police have announced that up to last Thursday morning the Crematorium had directed inquiries over 12,544 corpses in the Honjo military clothing warehouse and yard alone.
It has been learned that many passengers on the roofs of trains were killed off and killed in Usumi tunnel near Karuizawa.

Canalites in Tokio and Yokohama
now are estimated at 30,000 dead
and 100,000 injured, says another report.

Sharp earthquake shocks again
Saturday night aroused considerable anxiety, but did not interfere with the work of reconstruction,
which the end of the first week, following Japan's disaster, shows to be well under way.

Admiral Anderson, Commander of the Asiatic fleet of the United States Navy, is now in Tokio. The people are displaying their gratefulness for the prompt assistance given by America and Great Britain.

Food Supply Improving, Says Report to Japanese Embassy.

By the Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, Sept. 10.—Two reports under date of Sept. 9, one dealing with the economic aspect of the earthquake losses and the other describing the extent of damage and the relief measures taken, have been received by the Japanese embassy
here from the foreign office in Tokio.
The first dispatch was as follows:

"The commercial and industrial districts of Tokio and Yokohama are almost destroyed, but order is being well maintained and the supply of food is improving. In Tokio the large buildings of the chief banks,
such as the Bank of Japan, the Bank of the Yokohama Specie Bank, the Nippon Industrial Bank,
the Bank of Taiwan, the Mitsubishi
and Sumitomo banks are safe."
"Since Sept. 8, small payments

LOYD GEORGE URGED TO VISIT ST. LOUIS ON AMERICAN TOUR

Invitation Forwarded by Mayor to Secretary Davis, Who Will Be Former Premier's Host.

David Lloyd George, former British Premier, who will be in the United States in the latter part of this month, will be invited to St.
Louis by city officials and the Chamber of Commerce.

A formal invitation that Lloyd George visit St. Louis was sent today by Mayor Kiel, following a telegram the Mayor sent Saturday. Secretary Davis will be Lloyd George's host on his tour.

"We have elaborate plans for his entertainment, should he come to St.
Louis," the Mayor wrote, "and audiences of thousands will greet this distinguished visitor wherever he appears in our city." Mentioning Lloyd George's wartime premiership
of England, Mayor Kiel continued:
"Now in times of peace his wisdom and sagacity are commanding our admiration and we are eagerly looking forward to the privilege of having Lloyd George visit St. Louis."

Secretary Davis has said, in reply to several requests, that he will do what he can to cause Lloyd George
to come here.

A public address, under the auspices of the Chamber of Commerce,
probably would be a feature of the Lloyd George visit, and such an address probably would be broadcast
by Station KSD, the Post-Dispatch
radio station.

AIRPLANE SCOUTS FLY 206,525 MILES WITHOUT LOSS OF LIFE

Safety Record Made by Flyers of Atlantic Fleet in Old, Reconditioned Machines.

Special Correspondence of the Post-Dispatch.
NEWPORT, R. I., Sept. 10.—The scouting airplanes of the Atlantic fleet, which took so large a part Saturday in the opening of the Boston
air port, have flown within a year a total of 206,525 miles without the loss of a life. This represents a total flying time of 3755 hours.

The record is all the more remarkable in view of the fact that the naval aviators have been flying old, reconditioned planes, most of them
built during or just after the World War.

The Atlantic aircraft squadrons are made up of 12 scouting planes and 12 torpedo planes.

Pirates on Ship Get $20,000.

By the Associated Press.
HONGKONG, Sept. 10.—Fifty armed pirates traveling on a steamer
bound from Canton to Hongkong, surprised the captain in his cabin
Saturday night, ordered the officers to the wheel house under armed guard and then ransacked the ship, carrying off $20,000 in gold.

EGAN-HOGAN GANG WAR RENEWED; MAN SLAIN, ONE SHOT

Elmer Malone, Cousin of "Jelly Roll" Hogan, Murdered by Three Men Who Fire From Auto.

WOMAN RECORDED AS OWNER OF CAR

William McGee, Member of Legislature, Dangerously Wounded—James Hogan Believed to Have Been Shot.

City detectives today hunted for members of the Egan gang, and for Miss Tess Gallagher, recorded owner of the automobile from which the three men fired upon Michael Hogan's saloon, 2600 Cass avenue,
at 9:30 last night, killing Elmer Malone and dangerously wounding William McGee, a member of the Legislature.

Renewal of the Egan-Hogan warfare, suspended under a supposed truce for six months past, is seen by the police in last night's shooting.
James Hogan, whom the Eganites have made several attempts to
"get," was at the saloon corner shortly before, and one version of the matter is that he was there when the firing began, and was wounded in one arm. The police have looked for him in vain since the shooting.

Cousin of Hogans Killed.
Malone, who was killed, was a first cousin of James and Edward Hogan, the latter the leader of the "Jelly Roll" Hogan gang. Malone was not known as a gangster, and had never been arrested on a major crime charge. McGee, a horseshoer, was elected to the Legislature last year, and had been a candidate in 1920. He is wounded in the abdomen, and city hospital physicians today believed the wound was likely to prove fatal. To a Post-Dispatch reporter at the hospital, McGee said:
"I was standing on the southwest corner of Jefferson and Cass, talking to several men. I didn't see any of the Hogans there, and this young man didn't know me. I don't know the names of the men I was talking to, but they were fellows I used to see around."

"An auto came north on Jefferson,
and it cut the corner and turned west on the south side of Cass which was the wrong side for it to run on. Then the men in the machine started shooting. I saw them, but I didn't know them, and I wouldn't know them if I saw them again. I started to run away, when I was hit. I think they must have been after somebody else."

James Hogan Not Found.
The police found McGee, 15 minutes after the shooting, lying on a bed in James Hogan's home, 2430 A Cass avenue. Hogan was not there, and a young woman who said she was Hogan's wife professed not to know where he was. The place is McGee has been employed.

Two city detectives saw James Hogan at the saloon earlier in the evening. Hogan is under bond on a charge of robbing a negro bank messenger, who was later murdered. He was convicted of this robbery and was sentenced to 15 years' imprisonment, but the conviction was reversed and a new trial is pending. Patrick Scanlon was also about the saloon. He is under indictment in connection with the murder of Charles Vance, a gangster and criminal.

Persons who were near the corner
told the police that Hogan ran away
after the shooting, holding his right arm as if he had been wounded. The police were unable to find him or Scanlon. The number of the automobile was that of a Jewett car,
the license being in the name of
"Miss Tess Gallagher, 3841 Lee avenue." The address is a fictitious one, the police say, but the name is not. They were unable to find Miss Gallagher.

An Egan gangster was arrested
when he appeared at the Municipal Court Building, to report in court on a bond this morning. He was placed in the North Market Street Station.

Accounts Fail to Agree.

Some accounts of the shooting did not agree with that given by McGee,
the police were told by some witnesses that the automobile came east on Cass avenue, and after the shooting ran north on Jefferson.

All agreed that no one got out of the car, though it slowed down as the shooting was fired. Two of the men wore straw hats and one a felt hat.
A straw hat with brown band was found near the scene, but it is not known whether it was dropped from the murder car or was dropped by someone fleeing from the fusil-lage.

Ten or 12 shots were fired, by

ORDER PERMITTING SLOT MACHINES TO OPERATE IS SET ASIDE BY JUDGE HALL

So-Called Mint Venders Held to Constitute an Evil in That Boys and Others Are Induced to Play for Trade Checks.

The temporary restraining order against interference by police with the so-called mint-vending slot machines, that has permitted their operation since March 1, was dissolved
today by Circuit Judge Hall. He did not exactly rule that the playing of these machines was gambling, but held that it was evil in that it induced boys and others to play a second time in the hope of being rewarded with trade checks in addition to the mints that were issued by the machine with each original play. The decision dismissed the suit for a permanent injunction.

The suit for an injunction was filed March 1 by Benjamin Cook, manager of the O. K. Mint Vending Machine Co. following arrests of proprietors of several places where the machines were being operated.
At a subsequent hearing Cook argued that the machines were not gambling devices, and a plea was made that the arrests took from the proprietors of the places where the machines were operated their means of livelihood, in violation of the Constitution. At that time Cook said profits from the machines were divided three ways, and that his share averaged about $1000 a month.

Circuit Judge Landwehr granted
a temporary restraining order against the police in March, and also granted several continuances for Cook. When he would not grant more continuances, a change of venue was taken and the case assigned to Judge Hartman, who subsequently was disqualified because of his interest in an organization that was fighting the machines on behalf of minors. Judge Hall was given the case in May, and in his decision today he expressed the opinion that the machines were an inducement to play for trade checks, and that this was another of his reasons for dismissing the bill.

Conclusions on Gambling Phase.
"If the inducement to play a second time constitutes gambling, then shooting in galleries, throwing at dolls, trade stamps, coffee premiums, popcorn inducement prizes, all are gambling."

He pointed out that the recent trend in Missouri Appellate Courts was towards elimination of anything which might offer an inducement or in any manner encourage gambling, and this was another of his reasons for dismissing the bill.

PARTIAL ECLIPSE OF SUN VISIBLE HERE

Moon's Shadow Begins to Cover
Surface of Sun at 2:22—
Maximum at 3:29.

A partial eclipse of the sun was visible in St. Louis this afternoon, the shadow of the moon beginning to pass over the surface of the sun
at 2:20. Shortly after 2:30, the edge of the moon had passed part of the way across the path between earth
and sun, darkening a slender ellipse
on the sun's surface.

Persons viewing the eclipse have been warned to use pieces of perfectly smoked glass, as with an imperfect glass they will be looking at the sun unprotected, a dangerous thing for the sight.

The moon's distance from the center of the earth, as estimated for the time of today's eclipse, is 227,000 miles. As the moon passes between the sun and the earth, she trails behind her a conical shadow 231,000 miles long. This shadow, therefore,
will sweep across the earth's surface,
marking a path about 90 to 100 miles wide, the area of visibility for the total eclipse. San Diego, Cal., and the Santa Barbara Islands, are in the totality zone.

The St. Louis data for the partial eclipse are: Begins 2:22 p. m., middle of eclipse 3:29, end of eclipse
4:31. Greatest extent, 60 per cent.

Clouds Delay Viewing of Eclipse at Los Angeles.

By the Associated Press.
LOS ANGELES, Sept. 10.—Clouds observed the sky over Los Angeles
at 11:29 a. m. and frustrated efforts of thousands of observers here to glimpse the first phase of the solar eclipse which commenced at that time.

A few moments later, however,
the sun emerged and watchers were rewards with the sight of the thin crescent-shaped "bite" already taken out of the brilliant disc of the sun
by the slowly advancing moon.

The giant-shadow of the moon racing on a track 105 miles wide at the rate of 25 miles a minute, it was expected, would be witnessed by thousands of Southern Californians on rocky islands off the coast. Added to the lay watchers were scientists from America and Europe.

The path of the totality eclipse,
starting in the North Pacific, was expected to sweep along the west coast of the United States, touching the mainland only at Point Conception, Santa Barbara and San Diego, Cal., the duration of the darkening ranging from 50 seconds
at Santa Barbara to three minutes and four seconds at Point Conception.

Goal of Most Observers.

In its sweep, however, the shadow
could cross the islands of Santa Catalina, San Clemente and San Nicholas. The first named of these,

1 MAN DEAD, 22 MISSING, 7 WARSHIPS LOST IN WRECK

U. S. Destroyers Are Piled on Rocks Close to Beach Off Point Arguello Light
in Pacific Ocean, 75 Miles North of Santa Barbara, Cal.

SCORE IMPRISONED IN HULL OF CRAFT

Disaster Resulted From Picking Up of Radio Signals Intended for Another Ship
on a Rescue Mission.

By the Associated Press.
SANTA BARBARA, Cal., Sept. 10.
—One dead; 22 missing, of whom 19
are thought to be dead; three adrift on a life raft and possibly safe, and 12 injured in the hospital here, is the record in human losses and serious injuries resulting from the disaster in which seven United States destroyers were piled on the rocks
off Point Arguello Light in the Pacific Ocean, 75 miles north of this city, Saturday night. All vessels are believed to be a total loss, although a navy tug and a repair ship are standing by just at the edge of the tumbling breakers ready to render assistance if there is a possible chance.

All the ships lie close in to the beach except the Woodbury and Fuller, but the water is shallow and the breakers cover a strip several hundred yards wide. The Young is lying on her side while the Delphy is broken up. The bottoms of all the others are torn on the jagged rocks and their plight, like that of the Young, is hopeless. The surf has been heavy ever since the wreck, and hour by hour the hulks of the warships have been driven further up into the sands.

The task of cutting through the hull of the Young to release nearly a score of men imprisoned there was begun this morning. It is not known whether these men are dead or alive.
All mystery as to the cause of the disaster has been cleared away in the opinion of the survivors of the wreck and sea-faring men here, by the explanation that the navy ships were thrown more than 10 miles off their course by a confusion of radio signals.

The Cause of the Wreck.

Because of the wreck of the Pacific mail line Cuba on San Miguel Island off the coast nearly opposite the place where the destroyers met their doom, the radio operators on shore were trying to direct the course of the destroyer Reno to her assistance. The fog was so dense that the radio was the only guide.

The operators of the destroyer squadron, speeding along in the fog
over a rough sea, picked up the signals intended for the Reno. The mistake was discovered and Arguello Light Station corrected the bearings
for the destroyer fleet. The correction came about five minutes before the wreck. The ships changed their course, but the correction came too late.

The injured are being nursed at hospitals here; a train load of survivors has been sent to San Diego,
the naval base.

The destroyers S. P. Lee, Nichols, Fuller, Chauncey and Woodbury went aground in a position which gave their officers and crews a better chance for their lives than was afforded the crews of the other craft.

The Pacific coast line between San Francisco and San Diego juts into the ocean between Honda and Point Arguello, where the vessels were wrecked. In the same vicinity
the Santa Rosa, a passenger boat, went ashore a number of years ago
and was abandoned a total wreck.

Capt. C. J. Holland, all passengers and all members of the crew of the Cuba are safe and the 2,500
gold in treasure and all mail and baggage has been landed at Wilmington, according to word received by the general offices today.

Capt. Holland, the third mate and four seamen are on the same place on the reef where she struck
Saturday night.

The U. S. S. Selfridge, according to a message, landed several members of the crew and the treasure early today at San Pedro Harbor.
The Cuba was bound from South American ports to San Francisco when she went ashore today.
With a heavy sea running today

POLICE WITH BOMBS TAKE BELLEVILLE MAN WHO SHOT 4 PERSONS

Walter C. Cochran, 40, Besieged in Home After Wounding Wife, Her Mother and Two Officers.

PRISONER BEATEN BY CROWD AFTER CAPTURE

Victims Were Shot With Dum-Dum, or Flat-
Nosed Bullets, Physicians Say—St. Louis Policemen, With Tear Bombs, Aid in Attack on House.

Walter C. Cochran, 40 years old, shot and seriously wounded his young wife and her mother, Mrs. Virginia Hall, at his home, 412 East B street, Belleville, at 9:15 this morning. He shot two police officers who attempted to enter the house, and he held out against arrest until nearly 1 p. m., when he was captured by Belleville and St. Louis policemen, after the use of tear bombs, provided by the St. Louis police.

Cochran was beaten on the head and face by the crowd which surrounded him as the police took him away. A large crowd formed near the St. Clair County Jail, soon after he was taken there, and the Sheriff sent out his force of deputies to disperse
the gathering, fearing an attempt to take the prisoner.

Victims in Hospital.

The men wounded in the first attempts to enter the house were Police Officer George Schilling and Deputy Sheriff Albert Petrie. They, and the two wounded women, are in St.
Elizabeth's Hospital, Belleville. The men were both shot in the head.
Schilling's wound being apparently the more immediately dangerous,
and the women have abdominal wounds.

Physicians at the hospital said that Cochran had used soft-nosed bullets, of the kind known as dumdum, which have been prohibited in warfare by international law. In the cases of Schilling and Petrie, the bullets flattened after entering, and it will be difficult to remove them.

The Cochrans moved into the house, which is in the better residence section of Belleville, only a few days ago. Neighbors said they understood the wife was only 15 years old. She had a year-old baby, Virginia.

Neighbors Heard Abusive Talk.

Neighbors saw Cochran last evening, apparently drunk and heard him talking abusively to his wife and mother-in-law. The disturbance was renewed this morning and neighbors heard Mrs. Cochran cry, "Don't kill me!" The wife, who was wounded first,
was seen fleeing to a woodshed,
then going back into the house.

An iceman, John Engler, was delivering ice at the house when Cochran began firing at the women.
The wife, who was wounded first,
staggered out of the house, and Engler picked up the baby and ran out also. Cochran fired twice toward Engler, without harming him or the child. He then shot Mrs. Hall, who went out and fell against a wall.

As several persons went toward
Mrs. Hall, to take her away, Cochran shouted to them to keep away from the place, and fired several shots without hitting anyone.

Police Officer Schilling, who lives near the house, was the first officer
on the scene, and Deputy Petrie
went to the house shortly afterward.
They and several neighbors began grinding on the house, to distract the attention of the man inside, and while this barrage was provided, Peter Gardner, an undertaker, went up and took Mrs. Hall, whom he placed in an ambulance.

Two Officers Shot.

During the exchange of shots, both Schilling and Petrie were shot by Cochran as they were approaching
the house from opposite directions.

The Belleville police then sent an appeal to St. Louis for help, and 15 detectives were rushed to Belleville, with submachine guns, riot guns and tear bombs. They arrived shortly before noon, and found a state of truce, which had lasted for more than an hour, and which was broken by an occasional shot
from Cochran, and shots by the police at whatever part of the six-room house they judged him to be in. No one had been wounded in this snip-ing.

The St. Louis police shot in all the windows of the house, and then began hurling in tear bombs. He added, however, that Mr. Cooldidge's friendship for all nations was most sincere.

SHANGHAI, Sept. 10.—At the first shock of the earthquake the great off tanks on the hillside above the cable station at Yokosuka exploded, and millions of tons of oil swept down upon the city, turning the harbor into a mass of flames. The walls of the Negishi prison collapsed and 5000 convicts were released.

The most desperate of these sought to profit by looting and murdering the disabled. Hastily formed bodies of citizens, however, checked the miscreants and exacted a summary death penalty.

The American hospital is reported to have been hurried from the bluff to the cemetery below, tearing open the earth and exhuming the bodies of many of those interred there.

The stories of the earthquake as narrated by eyewitnesses depict scenes rivaling in horror the popular representations of the Buddhist hell. Business men were about to leave their offices in Yokohama at the close of Saturday morning's work, when, without warning, and with a tremendous roar, the ground heaved up four or five feet and then dropped back again. Houses on the bluff were precipitated headlong into the city. The ground rocked, heaved and swayed, like the waves of the sea. Fugitives fleeing from the falling buildings found their way blocked by huge, gaping holes, some of them large enough to admit a horse and wagon.

Peril was added by the rising water from the water main, which burst everywhere; this, with fire, blocked all the exits from the city. Hundreds sought to escape from a fury death by rushing toward the Yodo Maeh Canal, while some, who believed to cross on wooden light-bridges, were overtaken by blazing oil which flowed from the exploding tanks and met terrible death. Still others, panic-stricken, flung themselves into the water and met an equally dreadful fate.

The canal was soon choked with floating bodies. People leaped into the sea in the frenzy to escape the deluge of red-hot cinders from the blazing ruins.

Refugees Tell of Thrilling Escapes From Burning City.

Kobe, Sept. 10.—Marshall Mar- tin, a British refugee from Yokohama, describes as follows the death of M. de Jardin, the French Consul-General there:

"I was in the consulate with him, together with M. Bickart, a French attorney. The first shock threw Bickart and me into the compound, where the air seemed filled with yellow acid dust, which made breathing difficult.

The sound of crashing buildings was like the roar of a typhoon. Again and again we were thrown to the ground. When we finally recovered ourselves, we rushed back into the building to find that the Consul had been crushed under the heavy timber.

During our frantic efforts to rescue him other shocks flung us aside.

"I passed the American hospital, which was totally destroyed, but I didn't notice any of the patients. My hands and face were scorched, but I climbed past a tumbled down house underneath which several Japanese were pinned. One man's head was sticking out. His neck was caught and he could not move.

"Finally, I reached my collapsed house, where I found the children safe. The first thing I did then was to have my entire wardrobe emptied into the street for the naked and half-naked women and children."

Diagram of Today's Eclipse of the Sun

This diagram illustrating today's solar eclipse was drawn from a sketch made by the Rev. J. I. Shannon of St. Louis University. It shows how the moon, coming between the earth and the sun, cuts off the sun's rays from a small portion of the earth's surface, making a total eclipse visible at such points. For the purpose of the diagram, the moon is shown much larger, in relation to the earth, and much nearer than it actually is; also the spot on the earth's surface representing the phase of totality, is drawn too large. It will be a narrow zone on the Pacific Coast.

The lower picture is a photograph of the total eclipse of the sun Jan. 1, 1889, taken at Norman, Cal., by the party headed by Prof. Pritchett and Father Charroin. It is said to be one of the finest photographs of the corona, the most interesting phase of a total eclipse, ever made.

It is taken from a book by Mgr. M. S. Brennan, priest-astronomer.

We finally managed to extricate M. de Jardin, but he was fatally injured and died while I was searching for medical help. I put the body on a stretcher and hurried to my own home.

"The fires were spreading, necessitating a long detour. When I arrived it was to find the house lying in ruins. I was considering whether to attempt to save any valuables, three nearby dwellings burst into flames. I ran toward the British consulate, but found it encircled by flames. I then took refuge in the naval hospital compound, but this soon became untenable.

Hurled Children Over Cliff.

"The road from the summit of the bluff was crowded with Japanese, some of whom frantically hurled their children over the bluff, following themselves with such recklessness that they were often crushed at the bottom.

"When I reached the seashore the dead and injured were all along the foot of the bluff. It was ghastly. Many of the Japanese swam out to launches and other small water craft, but I finally managed to get a small boat and went aboard the Donagela.

George Firth, of Samuel Samuel & Co., Ltd., of Yokohama, who was ill in his home beyond the bluff, said that one minute the city was intact and the next it was dissolved before the eyes of observers.

"Fissures opened in the earth," he said, "and it seemed as if the whole foreign district on the bluff above would be sliding down on us."

"On Sunday morning," he continued, "there was a beautiful sunrise and the flames of the burning city seemed to be subdued, but they suddenly started afresh and within an hour the air was full of flames and smoke again."

American Hospital Destroyed.

"Strangely, few of them were crying," she said, "I wanted to reach home, and the children started climbing the bluff to get away from the flames, which were unspeakably awful. I cannot describe my feelings, but my chief aim was to save the children.

TOTAL ECLIPSE OF THE SUN ON WEST COAST TODAY

A popular resort, was the goal of most of the Southern California observers. At Avalon, "capital" of Santa Catalina, two minutes and 33 seconds of eclipse was promised. "Here the Yerkes Observatory had sent an expedition to devote the precious seconds to gathering astronomical observations available only when the sun is darkened.

Farther out at sea, San Clemente was in the center line of the eclipse, and the Clark Observatory had representatives there with three minutes and 34 seconds in which to watch the phenomenon. Less accessible than Santa Catalina, however, San Clemente drew but few of the curious.

Magnificent Spectacle Promised.

The scientists told the laymen to watch for the shadow and the corona. The shadow, due to the sun's corona, was said to be 12:51 p. m. would arrive at Avalon, more than 30 miles away, and in three minutes and 15 seconds would be darkened. The shadow, due to the sun's corona, was said to be 12:51 p. m. would arrive at Avalon, more than 30 miles away, and in three minutes and 15 seconds would be darkened.

When the shadow arrived, the corona, a magnificent halo, would spring into being about the moon's black disc as it obscured the face of the sun.

watch manufacturers, one of the refugees from Yokohama, gave a graphic description of his escape upon his arrival here. The Grand Hotel, he said, did not completely collapse as a result of the shock, but he saw it consumed by fire in less than 15 seconds. He was in the hotel when the shock hit, and he saw it consumed by fire in less than 15 seconds.

Great Crowds Rushed Into Sea.

"As the heat from the fire mounted," he said, "great crowds rushed into the water. Thousands were in the water, some swimming to various boats, some lying at the edge and some in up to their necks, with their hands over their faces as protection from the heat of the burning city. Covering my face with my coat, I finally came out of the water and continued to search for my wife."

"I met George Komer of Kuhn & Komer, Limited, standing opposite the ruins of his house, near what had been the Grand Hotel. Standing waist deep in debris and dust, and pointing to a woman's head which appeared high up in the pile of timbers, he was shouting 'Offer 10,000 francs to whoever rescues my wife.'"

"Her body was pinned by the timbers so that she could not move and her husband was unable to get near her. The fire was coming on fast from both sides. Soon the pile of timber caught fire and the woman was consumed before our eyes. We could distinctly hear her cries for help to the last."

"Then I resumed my search for my wife. The dead and dying were everywhere in all sorts of positions. The pall of smoke that hung over the city was very dense. I blundered into a friend and learned from him that he had seen my wife in the park. I rushed to the place and found thousands of people there. The park was surrounded on all sides by burning buildings and looked as though it might become an awful trap. Then Providence intervened, the water mains burst, and the park was soon flooded, almost waist high."

Scenes Unimaginable.

"We remained there for hours. Everybody had torn pieces of their clothing to cover their faces from the intense heat. When night came I heard the voice of an Englishman shouting: 'I am here to save you.' We discovered that he was from the steamship Empress of Russia and engaged in rescue work."

"To my question whether he had rescued any foreign women, he replied that he had just sent a boatload to the Empress of Russia. I went directly to the vessel but my wife was not there."

"I cannot describe the scenes aboard the Empress of Russia. Husband and wife were looking for wives; mothers were seeking children; they were hardly interested in me."

"Then I saw another boatload of rescued persons approaching the ship's gangway. I did not recognize any of them, until one came slowly toward me. It was my wife, but so gray with dust and swollen from the heat as to make her almost unrecognizable. The earth-

Passengers Sighted by Chance.

The Reno, after groping her way southward through the fog banks, reached San Pedro Harbor yesterday with the passengers and the survivors of the crew of the wrecked Cuba.

Lost in the fog and heading due west for the open sea, in the belief that they were bound for the mainland, two of the Cuba's boats were sighted late Saturday by the Reno as she was speeding through the fog on her annual full-power trials.

Chance sighting of the first lifeboat through a rift in the fog was all that saved the Cuba's ill-fated passengers, declared Lieutenant-Commander J. R. Barry of the Reno. He said:

"We were making 30 knots an hour and were hitting it up since we left Puget Sound for San Diego. We were scheduled to have passed down the inside of the channel, but the fog was so thick that I decided to strike outside for safety."

"About 3 o'clock Saturday afternoon we sighted a small boat on our beam. We thought it was a fishing boat at first, but as we dashed by I saw that it carried two men, two persons for such a craft. Three miles farther out we passed a second boat and knew that they were in distress."

"Our speed was so terrific that we were forced to make a long circuit of more than five miles to slow down before we reached the first lifeboat, in charge of the Cuba's chief engineer, W. J. Owens."

Lying in Heaps on Beach.

"Owens had his craft, as well as the one following him, headed directly westward in the belief that they were going east. He gave us an idea where the Cuba was piled up and an hour later we found her, head to head, and the heavy seas piling over her decks."

"The passengers, women and children, wearing coats and overcoats, were lying in the wreckage of the ship's officers, were lying in bedraggled heaps about the beach."

Fog and lost bearings, aggravated by the lack of wireless to ascertain compass bearings, was responsible for the accident according to the officers of the Cuba.

"Our radio set had been disabled since we left the Panama Canal, and we knew we were lost Saturday morning, but we were helpless without radio," said Radio Operator M. N. Willis.

By the Associated Press.

FRANKFORT, Sept. 10.—Allegations of brutal treatment of two Americans, one a woman, by French civil employees at Neustadt, in the German Palatinate, are contained in affidavits forwarded to Secretary of State Hughes by Frederick Dumont, American Consul here.

The charges are made by Anthony H. Sieb and his sister, Marie, of Jersey City. They were enroute to Ludwigshafen on Aug. 31 when they unwittingly violated station rules at Neustadt by crossing the railroad tracks instead of using the passenger tunnel provided for the purpose.

"The commissaire took us to task for crossing the tracks," said Sieb in his affidavit. "When my sister attempted to show her passport, the commissaire knocked her down, whereupon, when I remonstrated, the commissaire knocked me down and then knocked my sister down again and three other Frenchmen began to kick me about the head and body. Afterwards, four Moroccan soldiers were called to guard us."

When an interpreter was finally called, Sieb said, it was explained that the French thought he and his sister were Germans. Then officers came and offered to assist the Siebs in every way found an automobile was provided to take them to another station, as they had missed their train.

FURTHER MILITARY PREPARATION IN ITALY IS REPORTED

British Foreign Office Hears
That Optimism of Rome Is Designed to Mask Intentions of Mussolini.

By JOHN L. BALDERSTON,
London Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch and New York World.

LONDON, Sept. 10.—The British Foreign Office has received information that important military preparations have been commenced under cover of a stringent censorship in Italy.

It also hears preparations are being made in both Bulgaria and Hungary to support Italy against the Jugo-Slavs and any allies they may obtain.

Apparent settlement of the Italo-Greek incident gives pleasure here, but fear is felt the promise to evacuate Corfu when reparation is paid constitutes a clever move by Premier Mussolini to conciliate world opinion on the eve of much more serious developments.

Rome dispatches deny the existence of any Adriatic crisis. They explain Italy has addressed no ultimatum with a Sept. 15 time limit to Jugo-Slavia.

But this does not accord with Foreign Office advice and is feared Rome's optimism is merely designed to mask Mussolini's intentions. Any attempt by Italy to change the existing status of Fiume may unleash war in the Near East.

VETERANS' BUREAU INQUIRY URGED AS LEGION CONVENES

State Commander Asks Convention to Name Committee to Investigate Acts of Manager Head.

HAISON OFFICER ALSO BROUGHT UNDER FIRE

Kinkadee Would Have Activities of Rauschkolb Inquired Into—Removal of State Adjutant Sought.

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.
EXCELSIOR SPRINGS, Mo., Sept. 10.—A recommendation for investigation of the administration of the Ninth District, United States Veterans' Bureau, which has headquarters in St. Louis, was made to the American Legion of Missouri, which met in annual convention here today, by the State commander, James E. Kinkadee.

The passage of the commander's annual report dealing with dissatisfaction over the bureau's actions follows:

"I recommend an investigation committee to investigate the acts of the manager of the Ninth District Veterans' Bureau. I make this recommendation because I believe the policy of the bureau for this district has not been such that it has served the purpose for which our Government intended it, namely, the proper adjustment of claims of the deserving and disabled and the best possible rehabilitation of such men."

Liaison Officer Criticized.
The manager of the bureau is Mr. E. Heo. The commander's report was referred to a committee, from which a resolution permitting the convention to express itself on the subject is expected tomorrow.

Kinkadee further expressed himself on the bureau's management in the following passage: "I desire to call attention to what appears to be too close a relationship between the legion's liaison officer and the United States Veterans' Bureau. I recommend that this convention go on record as favoring an investigation of the activities of the liaison officer of the Ninth District."

That officer is George H. Rauschkolb of St. Louis, a member of Quentana, the liaison officer of the Legion. The Legion liaison officer is presumed to represent the interests of applicants for aid from the Veterans' Bureau. There is complaint that Rauschkolb has been forgetful of the interests of the applicants, and has been more mindful of the wishes of the bureau's offices, and has not prosecuted the interests of applicants satisfactorily before the Board of Appeals for the district.

St. Louis Delegation of 43 has two resolutions for the convention, one denouncing the Ku Klux Klan and the other favoring modification of the Volstead act to permit the sale of light wines and beer.

When the convention assembled today, it was with the prospect of a spirited clash on the floor, probably tomorrow, over the conduct of the State Adjutant's office by James R. Noonan.

The report of the State Finance Officer, submitted today, shows that the Legion on Aug. 31 had a deficit of approximately $6500. One group in the Legion, chiefly from country districts, had organized what has been called the "Better Legion" movement to remove Noonan from the ground that the deficit was caused by his extravagance. The administration group, which is standing by Noonan, declares that the deficit was unavoidable. It has traced the deficit to an insufficient annual tax upon members, now 50 cents a year. The State commander today advised that the tax be doubled.

St. Louis Delegates Split.
The St. Louis delegation is split, 21 to 21, on the move to oust Noonan, the majority favoring his retention. The Better Legion group is less than a majority. The constitution of the State Adjutant's salary from $3600 to $2000 a year. The State Commander has recommended removal of the offices to Jefferson City.

Leading candidates for the state commandery at the convention opened were Dan M. Nee, City Attorney of Springfield, and Frank Middleton of Unionville, State Game and Fish Commissioner. Friends of Nee at St. Louis of Kansas City were hopeful that they could muster strength for him, but the candidacy of any man from St. Louis or Kansas City was regarded as a forlorn hope. The city delegations, have virtually turned over the naming of State officers to the rural posts. About 1000 delegates, representing a membership of 16,000 in the State are attending the convention. Hanford R. MacNider of Iowa, past national commander of the legion, spoke at the opening session.

MAN DIES AFTER HAVING ENGAGED IN FIST FIGHT

Police Unable to Determine Whether Death Was Due to a Blow or Alcoholism.

John Pampy, 53 years old, of 3900 Page avenue died at his home at 11 o'clock last night, three hours after he had engaged in a fist fight with Earl French, 23, of 1429 Clear avenue, husband of his step-daughter.

Police were unable to determine from accounts of the affair by witnesses whether Pampy succumbed to alcoholism or died from blows inflicted by French.

Mrs. Claude Woods, a neighbor, said she was visiting at the Pampy home with her husband when Pampy and French came in. Both men had been drinking, she asserted, and they began to quarrel over which should have a certain chair. Pampy struck French and an exchange of fistuffs began, which ended when Pampy fell. He recovered, partly, and seemed all right. Mrs. Woods said, but collapsed later in the evening.

French stated to a Post-Dispatch reporter at the Deer street police station this morning that Pampy was intoxicated and abused Mrs. Pampy, and when he interfered, transferred his attack. He hit Pampy once under the chin and left the house, he said.

MAN KILLS WIFE AND SELF

Massachusetts Couple Said to Have Quarreled Over Money Matters.

By the Associated Press.
SCITUATE, Mass., Sept. 10.—Hilley P. Disher shot and fatally wounded his wife, formerly Elsie Cheney of South Manchester, Conn., early today at their home in Egypt and then turned his revolver on himself, inflicting fatal wounds. Week-end guests slept in the fashionable home when the shooting took place.

Disher is said to have been a former resident of Over, Ind. Mrs. Disher is understood to have been a relative of members of the firm of Cheney Brothers, silk manufacturers, at South Manchester, Conn. The police said that Mr. and Mrs. Disher had quarreled over money matters. Mrs. Disher is understood to have owned considerable property.

Guests at the Disher home heard the shots and rushed into the room. Chief of Police Turner said he had been informed that Mrs. Disher had threatened to leave her husband. Disher and his wife came here a year ago and bought the house where the shooting occurred. They had no children.

Hylan Condition Favorable.

SARATOGA SPRINGS, N. Y., Sept. 10.—The condition of Mayor Hylan of New York City, who is ill at his summer home here with pleuro-pneumonia, was very favorable this afternoon, his physicians announced.

Cleaning Company's Desk Robbed.
Burglars in the Scott Dyeing and Cleaning Co. plant, 3323 Olive street, early yesterday stole $234.70 from the desk of Arthur Hartman, secretary of the company. The money represented collections left with the watchman by drivers. A key to the desk was hidden under a blotter on another desk and the burglars found the key and opened Hartman's desk with it.

TWO CHILDREN DIE OF HURTS CAUSED BY AUTOMOBILES

Boy, 'Knocked Off Bicycle, Supposed He Was Not Injured Until Brain Trouble Developed.

A boy 14 years old and a girl of 5 years died at City Hospital yesterday of injuries caused by automobiles.

William Tibbles, son of George Tibbles of 2330 Montgomery street, died apparently of concussion of the brain and internal injuries suffered when knocked from his bicycle by an automobile in front of 2340 Montgomery street at 10:30 a. m. Saturday. The boy rode home on his bicycle and informed his father that he had been knocked from it by an automobile. The driver of which stopped, asked if he was hurt, and departed upon being assured by the boy that nothing was the matter.

Driver Held for Coroner.
Several hours later the boy complained of feeling ill. A doctor found several small bruises, but no serious injuries. The boy's condition became worse and another physician was called. The physician found indications of concussion of the brain and ordered the boy sent to City Hospital.

Tracing a license number, policemen found Edward Wagner, 46, of 1030 Leona avenue, University City. He admitted that his machine struck the boy and said he left the scene only when assured by the boy that he was unhurt. Wagner was held for the Coroner.

Truce Agreed to Last March.
The announcement of a truce, last March, followed conferences between police officials and Edward J. Hogan, after Father Timothy Dempsey of St. Patrick's Church had made efforts to reconcile the Hogans and William P. (Dinty) Colbeck, known as a leader of the former following of William T. Egan. The murder of William T. Egan, Oct. 31, 1921, was ascribed by his followers to James Hogan and others, and this has resulted in the repeated attempts of James Hogan's life, in the course of which his parents' home has been "shot up" twice.

William Garcia, a Spaniard, was found guilty of disturbing the peace of non-striking employees Saturday by a jury in Judge Monroe's court, and fined $75 and costs. Garcia was shot three times in the leg by a Deputy Sheriff on the third day of the strike, from which he has recovered. W. P. Rossman, 5575 Waterman avenue, St. Louis, is president of the American Zinc Co. Miners of Southern Illinois have advertised a great union demonstration meeting at Hillsboro, Sept. 29 and 30, in behalf of the smelter strikers.

CHARGES MEXICANS FIRED FIRST IN FIGHT AT MADISON

Patrolman, Only Man Uninjured in Encounter at Steel Plant, Gives Account of Killings.

The inquest into the deaths of a policeman, a private watchman and a Mexican laborer in a pistol fight in the railroad yards at Madison, Ill., near the Commonwealth Steel Co. plant early yesterday, is being delayed, pending the outcome of injuries suffered by the fourth man shot, another Mexican. His condition is critical.

From Patrolman Charles Ramsey of Madison, the only man uninjured in the fight, the Madison police have the following version of the killings:

Ramsey and Patrolman Joseph Zentgraf, 22 years old, went to the south gate of the steel plant shortly after midnight while making their rounds, and stopped to speak to J. W. Libbey, 54, of Madison, a watchman at the gate since part of the employees went on strike a few weeks ago. A moment later the three heard shots about 100 yards down the tracks to the south.

Challenge Met by Shots.
All ran in that direction, with Zentgraf in the lead, and found two Mexicans walking up the track, discharging firearms. Zentgraf, pistol in hand, called on the man to stop shooting and give him their revolvers. The answer was a volley of shots. Zentgraf fell dead, shot through the heart, and Libbey, a few steps behind him, dropped with wounds in the left breast and back. The Madison police say Zentgraf's pistol was picked up later, fully loaded, while Libbey never had an opportunity to draw his revolver.

Ramsey, from the other side of the track, opened fire on the Mexicans. One, later identified as Facerro Montoya, 26, was shot in the head, but continued firing until his revolver was empty. Patrolman Ramsey, still firing, then pursued the other Mexican, but the latter escaped in the darkness.

Libbey and Montoya were taken to St. Elizabeth Hospital, Granite City, where they died a short time later. Three of Ramsey's shots had struck Montoya in the head.

Wounded Man Found at Home.
The other Mexican, Bartolo Ramirez, 25, was taken to the hospital by Granite City policemen who found him, wounded in the back, at his home in the foreign section of Granite City, after his brother had notified them that he was "very sick."

Ramirez, who knows only a few words of English, has been unable to make a statement. He, like Montoya, who resides nearby, was a steel mill employee.

Libbey before going to work as a private watchman, was a special agent in Granite City for the Clover Leaf Railroad. His widow survives. Zentgraf had been a member of the Madison Police Department for 10 years. His widow and two children survive.

Police have been unable to find the pistol they believe Ramsey carried. Patrolman Ramsey said he was positive Ramsey fired upon the officers, as more shots were fired than could have come from the .38 caliber revolver found near Montoya.

An Especially Glorious Night for Brother Ben

Holy Roller Minister Climbs Tent Pole and Does Other Acrobatics as $400 Is Contributed for New Tabernacle.

Brother Ben Pemberton, head of the Pentecostal (Holy Roller) Mission, who lost most of his flock about a year ago to a man who offered eternal life on earth through the efficacy of a new kind of baptism, has come back, and last night had a congregation of more than 1000 persons in and around his big tent at Vandeventer and Evans avenues.

Indeed, Brother Ben has come back with a furious vengeance, for he attacked "the long-tailed boys," as he described ministers who wear long coats, and declared that if he could get "some of these first-flight ministers and bishops" under his tent he would induce them to substitute "a little kneecology for their theology."

Climbed Center Tent Pole.
It was a rousing meeting in which Brother Ben outdid himself as to acrobatics, and at one time he worked himself up to such a state of exaltation that he climbed the center tent pole and from an upside-down position half way up the pole shouted "Glory, glory, glo-o-o-y."

Brother Ben never walks around anything, he jumps over it. One of his favorite "stunts" in moments of spiritual uplift is to vault over the pulpit rail, dash through the main aisle to the streets, do a couple of handstands on the turn and a running high jump back into the pulpit. At other times, especially when the orchestra, consisting of piano, banjo and tambourines, gets to "jazzing up" the hymns, Brother Ben mounts a table and does a buck and wing dance.

$400 Raised for New Tabernacle.
Last night's performances were especially glorious, as Brother Ben raised more than $400 for a new tabernacle that he proposes to build at 4917 Easton avenue, and as the money poured in his acrobatics became more spectacular. But this phase of the meeting was marred by someone who took money from the tray instead of putting it in. When apprised of this petty larceny, Brother Ben himself took $2 from a tray and halted the meeting.

"I am told that a young woman took 50 cents from one of our trays and refused to let it back," he exclaimed. "Perhaps the poor little thing needed some rouge or a lipstick, and if she will step forward I will give her $2 more, poor little thing."

She did not step forward, but Brother Ben proclaimed that he would rescue her from the devil, as he would never stop praying until he saved that girl.

As has been told, Brother Ben formerly was a semi-professional wrestler. He is of stocky build and weighs about 225 pounds.

Hymns Set to Jazz Tunes.
"Some people think we are a lot of nuts," he exclaimed last night, "but our religion is not theologism, emotionalism, animism or bolshevism. Bless God, it is Holy-Ghostism."

The hundred or more singers, men and women, shrieked "glorys" and "Bless-His-names" to the accompaniment of writhings and these outbursts were followed invariably by hymns set to "jazzy" tunes.

"Some people say I'm a nut because I bounce up and down," Brother Ben exclaimed. "Listen, brethren, I'm going to bounce so high some day that I will go right into heaven. Why? Because I'm in a department store and hear the elevator girls say 'going up.' I say to myself, 'Glory, Brother Ben is going up.'"

There were many testimonials last night to the healing faith of the Pentecost creed. One portly woman stepped forth and declared she had spent $9000 on medicine for gallstones and kept growing "worse and worse" until it was found that she was really suffering from a cancer and was cured.

"Now, bless His name," she cried, "I weigh 265 pounds and am stronger than Brother Ben."

"Tell 'em again how much you weigh," cried Brother Ben.

"Two hundred and sixty-five, bless His name."

"Hard Case" Exhibited.
An aged woman declared she had been cured of paralysis in Brother Ben's tent. A young man testified that he had been blind from childhood, but regained his sight at a mission service in Jazziand Hall. But the worst case, with which he had had to deal, Brother Ben said, was that of a man with a very red nose whom he hauled to the platform.

"Now, look at his beaver," said Brother Ben. "There is something that would excite the envy of the most hardened boozefighter. This man fell into my tent one night in a drunken stupor and I was advised to have him arrested."

"No, we did not send him to jail. He had a skin full of moonshine, but we put sunshine in his soul."

The meetings are held seven nights a week, with a children's meeting at 2 p. m. on Sundays.

JURY EXONERATES HUNTER IN DEATH OF COMPANION

Accident Verdict Returned in Case of Ora J. Rhiver, Fatally Shot.

Hunting Squirrel.
A coroner's verdict of accidental death was returned yesterday in the case of Ora J. Rhiver, 47 years old, a packing house employee of 4375 Donovan avenue, who was shot in the head by Homer Straub, 2944 Gratiot street, when squirrel hunting yesterday morning, one mile south of Gumbo, St. Louis County. Rhiver leaves a wife and seven children.

Rhiver was hunting with Straub and John Ruppert, 3984 Gratiot street, and the three men had become separated in some underbrush. It was stated at the inquest that Straub fired his shotgun over some brush at a squirrel in a tree. He and Ruppert immediately heard screams and found Rhiver lying near the tree, fatally wounded. A large part of the charge from Straub's shotgun had struck him in the neck and head. Rhiver apparently was hidden in the bushes. It was stated, waiting an opportunity for a shot at a squirrel.

Germans Put Their Savings Into Old Rugs and Silver
Correspondence of the Associated Press.
DRESDEN, Aug. 18.—Art dealers and antiquarians here have few valuable objects of art left in their shops. Since the market began its wild downward course and the distrust in money became so acute, Germans have been putting all their savings into articles which they believe to have a stable value in a world market. Old masterpieces, old furniture, silver, old tapestries and old rugs have been eagerly snapped up if they had beauty and bore evidence of their age.

NAT GOLDSTEIN GETS POST

Appointment of Leslie M. Campbell and the St. Louis Union Trust Co., named executor in the will, was revoked with the appointment of Goldstein. He will be in charge of the estate until the will contest is disposed of. The law permits the temporary administrator to retain 5 per cent of funds disbursed by him and also a reasonable fee for his services. Appointment of Goldstein was made by Probate Judge Holtcamp.

MINERS' UNION ASSAILS REPORT OF COAL BOARD

Commission's Findings on Causes of Strikes Said to Read Like Brief for Non-Union Operators.

By the Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, Sept. 10.—The United Mine Workers of America, in a statement issued here, attacked yesterday's report of the Coal Commission on causes of strikes as reading "very much like a well-prepared brief in behalf of the nonunion bituminous coal operators of West Virginia and Northeastern Kentucky."

"Those nonunion operators," the statement said, "should immediately hold a meeting and give a rising vote of thanks to the commission for that report," which it asserted, "clearly attempts to place upon the United Mine Workers of America the blame for what happened in these nonunion fields."

"Why did not the commission," it asked, "declare that the non-union coal companies have no right, under the law or the Constitution, to use force and coercion to prevent their men from voluntarily asserting their right to affiliate with the labor union."

Flat denial was made that the United Mine Workers had paid more than $400,000 in damages for the destruction of the Willits Branch Coal Co. mines, as stated in the report.

Commission Cites Outbreak at Herrin; Blame Not Fixed.

By the Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, Sept. 10.—Comparing the controversy in the coal situation to that over slavery just prior to the Civil War, the United States Coal Commission declared in a report submitted to President Coolidge yesterday that the national interest required establishment of a fixed code for settlement of this and other industrial disputes.

Regardless of the inherent rights possessed by both sides, the commission held, the necessity of coal to the general public makes it incumbent upon both operators and workers "to make some personal sacrifices in the interest of the common weal."

The outbreak at Herrin, Ill., in June, 1922, and the more recent disturbance in the West Virginia fields were cited as indicative of the serious aspect the general situation has taken. The commission reviewed the history of both cases in detail, but declined to fix responsibility further than to say the serious results might be attributed to the intense passions which had been gradually fostered among the members of the two opposing camps, and to the attitude of the communities involved toward law and order.

Guarantee of Justice Needed.
While public officials at Herrin undoubtedly were lax in performing their duty, the report said, there was no evidence that the United Mine Workers foresaw the fatal consequences of the conflict between union and operator at that place. Declaring it would be better for the participants themselves to work out the exact terms of the code, the commission set forth as the framework, the following principles:

1. No contract is of any valid binding force in America which has not been freely and voluntarily entered into.

2. The right of a man to work, when, where, for whom and under what conditions and at what wages he chooses, so long as he elects to assert his individual right, must never be interfered with and the State must furnish him protection and peace while he exercises this right.

3. In a free Government men have a right to combine themselves together into organizations for collective bargaining with reference to terms and conditions under which they will work; they must exercise this right without force and intimidation, and must not interfere with the right of the man who chooses to dispose of his time individually.

4. Society has a right to fix a limitation beyond which it will not permit either these de facto or de jure organizations to go.

5.—There is an implied duty upon corporations "to pay life, health, and other benefits to their employees who are able-bodied, willing and competent, and who give an honest day's work, sufficient wage to enable that person and his family to live in accordance with the standards of American life, and to pay in addition thereto for skill and experience."

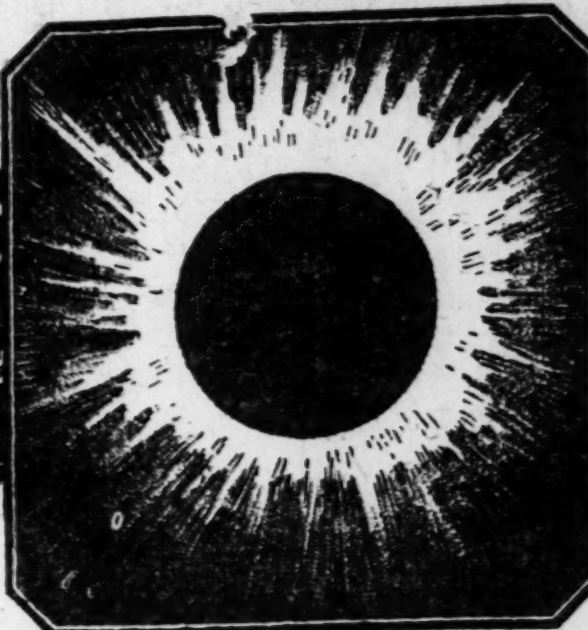

6.—The general public has a right to demand of its Government that it shall not freeze in the midst of an abundance of coal, "unless capital and labor adopt methods that will furnish to the public coal when needed," "an outraged public sentiment will furnish the supply by either the army or the penitentiary."

7.—When contracts have been voluntarily entered into "the industry itself should provide boards of arbitration, both local and appellate, to speedily dispose of causes in accordance with the terms of the contract and the principles herein set out."

21 Warships to Be Sold for Scrap.
By the Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, Sept. 10.—Twenty-one battleships and battle cruisers of the United States navy are to be sold for scrap at a series of sales beginning Oct. 15, it is announced. The scrapping will be in compliance with the treaty for limitation of armaments.

The Elgin Time Observatory takes the time from the stars and transmits it to the Elgin Laboratories and Timing Rooms. It is the only observatory operated by a watch company in practical timekeeping service every day.

A solar eclipse affords astronomers their only opportunity to study the "corona" or halo which surrounds the sun.

Today—the most important 2 minutes and 52 seconds in twenty-two years

Total eclipse of the sun to be studied on Santa Catalina Island by the Yerkes Observatory Eclipse Expedition. Director of the Expedition selected Elgin Astronomer to record the time of the eclipse with Elgin Watches.

MOST total eclipses of the sun are visible only in far-off uninhabited places.

But today, September 10th, the sun will be in total eclipse, the path of which will cross the whole Pacific Ocean, and will be visible for 2 minutes and 52 seconds on Santa Catalina Island, California.

A most important event to astronomers—and to all of us.

The more we can find out about the composition and the structure of the sun, the more we shall know about the universe—and about this planet, the Earth.

Strangely enough, astronomers can find out most about the sun's outer envelope only when it is in total eclipse.

Then the direct rays of the sun are shut off—and the astronomer can study the sun's "corona".

The "corona" is the vast ring of flaming gases that shoot out for thousands of miles around the sun.

With telescope, spectroscope and camera the astronomer studies the flaming gases of the "corona", and so learns about what the sun is made of.

There will not be another total eclipse so favorably located for study until 1945. So this 2 minutes 52 seconds about noon today is a very precious opportunity indeed.

Astronomers and scientists from all over the world are gathered together today at Catalina Island, studying the eclipse in association with the Yerkes Observatory Eclipse Expedition.

Each member of the Expedition is assigned to a specific part of the work.

To an astronomer of the Elgin National Watch Company's Observatory is assigned the duty of recording the time of the eclipse—with Elgin Watches.

In this assignment, and its recognition of the professional timekeeping standards maintained by Elgin for over fifty years—this Company takes a pardonable pride.

Nor is it any less gratifying to know that these same timekeeping standards are at the practical service of everyone whose pocket or wrist carries an Elgin Watch.

BOAT DROWNED IN SLOUGH WHEN HE STEPS INTO SINK HOLE
 John Gibson, 19, Had Gone With Party in Rowboat in Search of Place to Swim.
 John Gibson, 19 years old, of North Broadway was drowned at noon yesterday in a slough formed by backwater of the Mississippi River a mile north of the Riverview Club, when he stepped into a sink hole while wading.

He was with a party of three youths and two girls, and they had rowed out into open water in search of a place to swim. William Hagerty, 19, of 1629 Oulda avenue, who was at the oars, tested the depth of the water and declared it to be safe for Gibson and the girls. When the bathers plunged in they found that Hagerty had miscalculated the depth of mud on the bottom. In the confusion Gibson sank from sight. Misses Marcella Bonney, 20, and Alice Quirk, 18, and Irvin Kressler, 13, were rescued by Walter Morris, 21, of 6028 North Broadway, the sixth member of the party. Gibson's body was recovered.

Burglars Get Jewelry.
 Burglars in the home of Albert Scheer, 6112 Kingsbury avenue, in the absence of the family last night obtained jewelry valued at $650.

Disappointed Burglars Turn Vandals.
 Burglars, who failed in their efforts to get into two safes in the office of the V. E. P. Paint Co., 5223 North Second street, early yesterday, smeared paint of various colors all over the office furniture and fixtures. The combinations of both safes were knocked off, but the burglars failed to get the locks open. The burglars forced a door into a stock room to get cans of paint which they opened and smeared over the office.

THE LITTLE SHOE

Restful for Tired Feet

HOW many times have you felt exhausted and utterly spent at the end of the day? Very frequently this fatigue is due, not to strenuous work, play or shopping, but simply to incorrectly built footwear. If this is the case with you, your exhaustion can be easily overcome.

MINERS CHARGE INSPIRED BY U.S. GOVERNMENT

Allege Inquiry Shows A of Unions as Ba International

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Sept. 10.—The United Mine Workers of America yesterday made public the first of a series of six articles charging that "red forces, under the direct supervision of Moscow, are attempting to seize control of the organized labor movement of America and to use it as the base from which to carry on the communist effort for the overthrow of American Government."

"Imported revolution is knocking at the door of the United Mine Workers of America and of the people of the United States and Canada," says the introductory article, which adds that its disclosures are "the result of an independent, searching investigation by the mine workers' organization which led directly to original sources."

Alleged Red Program.

Through a revolutionary movement in this continent, the Communist International at Moscow has undertaken, say the miners, to carry out the following program:

"1. Overthrow and destruction of the Federal, state and provincial governments, with the elimination of existing constitutional forms and foundations.
"2. Establishment of a soviet dictatorship, absolute in its exercise of power, owing allegiance to and conceding the authority only of the communist or Third International at Moscow as a governmental substitute.
"3. Destruction of all social, economic and political institutions as they exist at this time.
"4. Seizure of all labor unions through a process of boring from within them and utilizing them as a strategic instrument in fulfillment of the revolutionary designs on organized and constitutional government.
"5. Invasion of the United Mine Workers of America, with ouster of its present officials and leaders and substitution of a leadership of communism so that it may be used as an instrument for the seizure of labor unions of America and eventually taking possession of the country.
"Grandiose Scheme Alleged.
"6. A well organized movement is being promoted within the big four railroad brotherhoods and 16 railroad trade unions to amalgamate all rail workers into one departmentalized industrial union, controlled by a single leader of communist principles and affiliation and owing allegiance to the communist organization.
"7. Seizure of the American Federation of Labor, with the ouster of its officials and, through such seizure, gaining control of its affiliated units and trade unions.
"8. Conversion of all trade craft unions into single units of workers within an industry known as 'Industrial Unions,' with co-ordination under a super-soviet union owning allegiance to and accepting the main dates of the Communist International and its subsidiary, the Red Trade Union International at Moscow.
"9. Through conquest and subjugation of the labor unions and conversion and mobilization of farmers and other groups, the overthrow of existing institutions and creation of

NEW PAPER MONEY DESIGNS ANNOUNCED

Bills of Distinctive Types and Markings Soon to Be in Circulation.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 10.—Secretary Mellon's approval of the new designs for paper money, under consideration for more than a year, was announced yesterday at the Treasury Department, and many brand new bills of distinctive type and marking soon will be in circulation. The new designs at first will affect only United States notes, silver certificates and Federal Reserve notes in denominations up to $100, with the exception of the "unpopular $1 note, but it is hoped later to extend the new designs—amounting almost to a program of standardization—to national bank notes and ultimately to the rare gold certificates.

Designs to Be Standardized.
Working to make the job of the counterfeiter less remunerative, Treasury experts chose the method of standardizing designs, giving up denomination of all kinds of counterfeits one distinctive design for face value, so that those persons who recognize the money come to recognize instantly if alteration has been attempted.

The faces of the new bills will carry portraits of well-known figures in American history, mostly Presidents, and the best known faces have been chosen for the bills now issued. The $1 bill, for instance, will have Washington's portrait; the $5 Lincoln's, and the $10 Jackson's.

MINERS CHARGE RED FORCES, INSPIRED BY MOSCOW, PLAN U.S. GOVERNMENT OVERTHROW

Allege Inquiry Shows Attempt to Seize Control of Unions as Base for Communist Internationale's Effort.

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau, Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Sept. 10.—The United Mine Workers of America
yesterday made public the first of a series of six articles charging that
"red forces, under the direct supervision of Moscow, are attempting to seize control of the organized labor movement of America and to use it as the base from which to carry on the communist effort for the overthrow of American Government."

"Imported revolution is knocking
at the door of the United Mine Workers of America and of the people of the United States and Canada," says
the introductory article, which adds that its disclosures are "the result of an independent, searching investigation by the mine workers' organization which led directly to original sources."

Alleged Red Program.

Through a revolutionary movement
in this continent, the Communist Internationale at Moscow has undertaken to make them instruments for the furtherance of the Moscow program.

Blame Them for Herrin Massacre.

The Herrin massacre of nonunion
miners last year was blamed by authorities of the articles on groups of Communist spies, who, according to the articles, were active in Chicago.
Bombings, dynamiting, rioting and sabotage that marked the two big strikes last year were laid at the door of the Reds.

The American Civil Liberties Union, which was charged, provided legal talent and money to obtain the release of persons arrested for or prevented from delivering seditious speeches. The league was challenged to show where it ever exposed the cause of a person not directly active in Communist circles.

All these activities, in which it is alleged more than 6000 leaders and 1,000,000 adherents and sympathizers were involved, were aimed at the one big purpose—revolutionary Communism—said the miners' leaders.

The seizure of this union is being attempted as the first step in the realization of the "industrial revolution" program of the Communist Internationale at Moscow for the conquest of the American continent," continues the article.

"The overthrow and destruction of this Government, with the establishment of an absolute and arbitrary dictatorship and the elimination of all forms of popular voice in government, are being attempted
on a more gigantic scale, with
more resolute purpose and with
more crafty design, than at any time in the history of this nation."

Baldwin, Mentioned in Miners'
Charges, Once Was Active Here.

Roger Baldwin resided in St. Louis from his graduation from Harvard until he went to New York in 1917.
He was a student here of the Civic League, and was an instructor in sociology in Washington University and chief probation officer of the Juvenile Court, where he instituted the "big brother" attitude. He served months of a one-year prison sentence in Essex County, New Jersey,
for failing to report for physical examination under the draft.

Cleveland's likeness will appear on the $20 bills, while for the $50 and $100 the portraits of Gen. Grant and Benjamin Franklin, respectively, have been selected.

The serial, sequence numbers and symbol letters will be overprinted in colors on the face of the United States notes and silver certificates
and the same plan will be followed for the Federal Reserve notes, which also will carry the name of the issue reserve bank. The overprinting in silver certificates will be blue, on the United States notes green, and on the Federal Reserve notes red.

Backs of New Bills.

The backs of the new bills will be of the same general character as the present gold notes, consisting of the conventional scroll work panel with lathe work border and no pictures and thus the design of any one denomination will become well known whether it be a United States note, silver certificate or Federal Reserve note.

As for the $2 bill, the statement said the committee had been unable to find reasons for its popularity,
but a new design for it was not included in the changes approved by Mellon since its discontinuation is being considered. If it finally is decided to continue the bill, however, a portrait of Thomas Jefferson will be used and a design in accord with the new program will be worked out.

Adams Confers With Coolidge.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 10.—After a conference today with President Coolidge, Chairman Adams of the Republican National Committee said
the committee probably would meet in Washington in December to select a place for the 1924 Republican national convention. All the cities that have issued invitations will be given a full hearing, Adams said.

SPECIAL ELECTION ON CONSTITUTION WITHIN 6 MONTHS

Committee on Submission and Address Drafting Message to Public During Recess of Code Session.

PROPOSALS COVER
MANY QUESTIONS

Cost of Meeting in Session for a Year Estimated at $550,000 at Time of Temporary Adjournment.

By the Jefferson City Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Sept. 10.—
Has the constitutional convention fulfilled the mission for which it was convened? Has its corrective surgery straightened limbs of the old Constitution which had become twisted during the 48 years of its use? Has it built into the fundamental law of the State those additions demanded by changing conditions of practical life? And has its work justified the expense it has incurred?

The answer to these questions
must come from voters of Missouri,
who at a special election within the next six months will pass upon the recommendations of the convention,
now in recess for three weeks, while its committee on submission and address drafts the message to the people.

Pending submission of the formal text to the public, a review of the higher points of accomplishment by the convention may aid the public in its first thought upon the questions
upon which it must act as jury.

The convention has decided to offer amendments to about one-third of the approximately 300 sections of the present Constitution, and to delete amendments are vital. Some of them are drastic. Others are homeopathic.

Among them are proposals designed to enable greater development of the public schools of both city and country, to enable the selection of men better fitted for public office, to weed out and abolish useless arms of the State and to eliminate the expense of the institution of that institution, to facilitate the movement of litigation through the courts, to improve and develop the cities and raise the plane
of their local government, and to eliminate the conviction of criminals, especially those whose crimes
have had to do with elections.

School Amendment Important.

Possibly the most important of the entire State, potentially, is an effort to do away with the barriers preventing rural school districts from raising sufficient funds to operate effective machinery for the education of their children. Rural school districts now levy 10 cents on property, 10 cents on land, and 10 cents on school. 65 cents if a majority of the voters of the district approve, and an additional sum for buildings and repairs if two-thirds agree to it.

City districts are in somewhat better position in that they can levy 60 cents without a vote, 11 with approval of a majority and a building
levy with the consent of two-thirds.

The convention would allow rural districts to levy 40 cents and city districts 75 cents without a vote up to $1, by majority vote up to $1.20
by two-thirds vote and up to $1.50
by three-fourths vote, with a further levy for building purposes if two-thirds agree. Excess levies now cu-mulate only when elections are held each year. Under the new proposal a levy would stand for a number of years, up to four, specified in the call for the election, thus saving
the districts the cost of repeated
special elections. The boards of education would be under no obligation to levy the full voted rate in succeeded years unless it were needed.

State Board of Education.

This would permit the school districts to work out their own salvation and have good schools or poor ones, as their residents decided. The convention also will urge the creation of a State Board of Education of six members, whose election and per diem compensation would be left to the Legislature, to head the State Department of Education instead of the present elective State Superintendent of Schools. The board would select a commissioner of education to direct detail of the department.

This plan was adopted in the hope that it would result in the selection of a State board somewhat on a par with the board of curators of the University of Missouri, the members of which usually are far removed from the currents of partisan politics as is practically possible, to the end that the commissioner directing the schools of the State, chosen by the Legislature, would not be a political actor, and not as a political victor.
The State Superintendent is elected
now through the regular routine of partisan politics.

tive branches of the State Govern-

ST. LOUIS POST-DISPATCH

ST. LOUIS, MONDAY EVENING, SEPTEMBER 10, 1933.

This is one of a series of intimate stories concerning President Coolidge, as related by his townsfolk in Northampton, Mass., where Coolidge still remains just "Cal."

It was into the genial, easy atmosphere of the law firm of Hammond & Field, young Calvin Coolidge, gawky and silent but studious and
in 1905. And it is Henry P. Field, junior partner of the firm, now white haired, an entertaining talker and comfortable of disposition, who tells the story.

"When Cal came into our firm, wholly unknown to us, my partner was running for District Attorney and I was up for Mayor. The law business, so far as our firm was concerned, was adjourned sine die.
There were always conferences going on.

"Cal must have caught the germ then. I know it was only a few months later that the buzzing and conferences had moved across into the corner where Cal kept his desk. He got interested all-fired quick.

"Well, Cal went the way a young lawyer takes in a small town.
He was on the City Committee, the Council, was elected Mayor, then Representative, and then Senator. Up to that point his career did not differ from that of hundreds of other youngsters before and after him.

"Of course, his friendship with Frank W. Stearns, after he became President of the Senate, was what really made him; it gave him big financial support, which was all he needed. But it was his becoming President of the Senate that was the big break in his career and started him marching upward.

"He was running for re-election as Senator. His election was certain. Then the night of the election we suddenly learned the President of the Senate the previous term had been killed. It was wholly unexpected; he had looked to win easily. That same night Cal packed up his little black handbag. I saw him striding toward the station, his head bent against the wind.

"Where're you going, Cal?" I asked.

"Boston," he said, and disappeared in the dusk.

"Do you know that Cal came back from Boston in two days? Yes, sir, two days, no more. And in his little black bag he had the signed pledges of a majority of the Senate to vote for him as President. How he did it in that time I will never know or understand. Uncle Murray Crane, who ran the party, couldn't have done it in that time. Those Senators were scattered all over the State. But he lined 'em up somehow. I've always wondered what he did in Boston those two days. It was the snappiest piece of work I ever knew. And it was the stunt that lifted him above the crowd for the first time. Yes, sir, I don't understand."

CHANGES PROPOSED BY CONVENTION OF SPECIAL INTEREST TO ST. LOUIS

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Sept. 10.— CHANGES in the present order suggested by the convention of particular interest in St.
Louis would have an effect as follows:

Provide three avenues through which St. Louis could expand her territorial limits.

Give home rule over the Police Department subject to power of the Governor to remove the commissioner or members of the board of commissioners.

Enable the city to provide a policemen's pension fund on a similar basis to that on which
all forms of popular voice in government, are being attempted
on a more gigantic scale, with
more resolute purpose and with
more crafty design, than at any
time in the history of this nation."

and toward readjustment of freight rates on anthracite, and announced his own purpose of calling upon the Governors of all anthracite-consuming States to investigate the profits
of dealers in coal-wholesalers,
brokers, jobbers and retailers.

The Governor's letter to Mr.
Coolidge says that, a supply of anthrachite to the consumer for the next two winters having thus been assured, the next question is that of price. The total legitimate increase of the cost of coal under the terms of the settlement is about 60 cents per ton. Of this amount not less than 10 cents should properly be taken up by all the operators, many of whom could absorb the whole of the 60-cent increase and still make abundant profits.

In fairness, the remainder of the 60 cents should never reach the consumer. It is certain, however, that this amount, and probably much more, will be exacted from consumers unless public action is taken to prevent it. Accordingly, since you were good enough to indicate that suggestions from me concerning anthracite should not be viewed as a mere suggestion, I am writing to suggest that the public should be made aware of the situation and that the Interstate Commerce Commission would take up and consider anew the rates charged for transportation of anthrachite coal with a view to reducing them if justification for such reduction should be found.

Reopening of the mines now is dependent only upon ratification
of a tridistrict convention of union miners in the anthracite region. The convention has been called for Sept.
17, in Scranton.

THE POST-DISPATCH PLAT-FORM.

I know that my retirement will make no difference in its cardinal principles, that it will always fight for progress and reform, never tolerate injustice or corruption, always fight demagogues of all parties, never belong to any party, always oppose privileged classes and public plunderers, never lack sympathy with the poor, always remain devoted to the public welfare, never be satisfied with merely printing news, always be drastically independent; never be afraid to attack wrong, whether by predatory plutocracy or predatory poverty.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE.

Reed and Trinkle in 1924.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

OWING to the great dissatisfaction in the country, people are beginning to think about the presidential race next year and the rank and file in the Democratic party are dissatisfied with past management of the party and its platform. This dissatisfaction leads to the question, "What are the principles of the Democratic party?" The intelligent Democrat can readily answer this question and in doing so give the reason for the prevailing dissatisfaction. The Democratic party was founded in 1800 by Thomas Jefferson in the interest of the common people to oppose the class legislation of the Federalist party, now known as the Republican party.

The principles of the Democratic party were taken from Jefferson's first message to Congress, delivered on March 4, 1801. In this message are to be found these declarations: "What I deem the essential principles of our Government, and consequently those which ought to shape its administration, are equal and exact justice to all men of whatever state or persuasion, religious or political; peace, commerce, and honest friendship with all nations—entangling alliances with none." "It is the chief duty of our peace at home and safety abroad."

Senator James A. Reed of Missouri is the most fearless and able exponent of Jeffersonian principles in our country today, and the Democratic party should return to Jeffersonian principles by nominating him for President next year. The Hon. E. Lee Trinkle, present Governor of Virginia, should be nominated for vice-president because he is a practical farmer, like Jefferson, and a profound student of history and a simple pure Jeffersonian Democrat.

They Were Not Necessarily Related.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

IN reading Dr. Hanson's article in Sunday's magazine, I noted a material contradiction in thought, concerning the presumed to represent the doctor's expressed views on human evolution. First, the reconstructions of man's ancestors show Pithecanthropus erectus as first in the series. Now, opinion is divided between Pithecanthropus and Pliocene as the age in which this creature lived, but opinion is solid that it was in no wise intelligent or human.

Second, the doctor quotes with approval Prof. Osborne's statement: "It is these flints . . . which firmly establish the existence of Pliocene man in Britain." These men, the doctor grants, had "sufficient intelligence to fashion flints and build a fire."

Now, if we take Pithecanthropus erectus as Pliocene, then we must hold that these Pliocene men antedated their earliest known nonhuman ancestors by several thousand years. But even if we fall back on Pliocene as the time of the Pithecanthropus erectus, then, according to Dr. Hanson, man "intelligent enough to build a fire" lived contemporaneously with his earliest known prehuman ancestor? Will you settle my difficulty?

The Ex-Soldier With 10 Children.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

I AGREE with T. Henry about Mr. Distenweg's suggested Harding Tomb Fund. If Mr. Distenweg and others have some money to spare, let them start a fund for those ex-soldiers who are unfortunately not to receive a bonus and are blessed with many children besides.

We have 10. My husband is an ex-soldier, honorably discharged, and we hoped for a bonus to help us along. His job pays $19 a week. The children are in an orphanage, as we have no means to take them home.

So if Mr. Distenweg, Mayor Kiel and others have some money to spare, let them give it to those who need it.

Compulsory Brake Inspection.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

WITH all the "safety tips" about the operation of "joyrides" pouring into the daily papers from the Safety Council and elsewhere, it seems to me that possibly a few more added to the number may not do any great harm. Brakes, which are the most important safety device on an automobile, are usually the most neglected. Just so they stop the car, no matter how, generally stop most drivers. And driving fast at right corners, with bad brakes in the bargain, the driver, whether he realizes it or not, is most certainly flirting with the undertaker.

As the majority of drivers don't give a rap about their brakes, some think it great if they work at all, brake inspection should be made compulsory by the city authorities. Or possibly a better plan would be to send around authorized brake inspectors to every owner's garage to see that they are O. K. Every one of us can go down and have our head lights tested and O. K. so why not brakes?

THE CODE CONVENTION'S WORK.

The Missouri Constitutional Convention has completed its work. It met on April 15, 1922, and, except for an intermission of four months between Dec. 15 and April 15, has been almost continuously at its task.

The date upon which the revised code will be submitted to the voters will be designated on Oct. 2, when the convention will meet in final session. The law provides that the election must be held in the period between 60 days and six months following the convention's final adjournment, which is expected to take place Oct. 8. Sentiment seems to favor holding the election some time in December, before the public mind is engaged in the politics of the forthcoming presidential campaign. Should a December date be chosen ample time will have been given the public for discussion of the proposed code. The vital importance of the subject demands the most serious and thoughtful consideration on the public's part.

A year's labor of such a body of men as composed this convention may not lightly be passed upon. Such labor is a challenge to the citizen to cast a sincere, informed vote. There will be opposition, of course, and some of the opposition will not be disinterested. The voice of the demagogue will be heard in general denunciation. The faddist, plucked, perhaps, because he did not get his pet hobby embodied in the draft, will join the anti. The special interests, profiting by things as they are, will have their spokesmen on the stump. The mental type that always resists or suspects change will submit his argument.

The public must be on guard against such special pleaders. The citizen ought to reach his own conclusion on this question. Fortunately, the citizen will not be compelled wholly to ratify or reject the revision. The convention, profiting by the experience of other States, wisely has decided to submit its recommendations in the form of amendments, thus enabling the citizen to vote for those he approves and against those he disapproves.

The Post-Dispatch will discuss all the proposed amendments fully before the date of election. Some of the proposals seem so just and necessary as hardly to require discussion. But without bias or prejudice the Post-Dispatch will undertake to approach every recommendation with an open mind and come to its decision, favorable or adverse, only after the most scrutinizing study.

This is the least that every citizen and every newspaper owes to the delegates to the convention who have given a year of arduous service to the State of Missouri.

UPHAM'S POLITICAL HINDSIGHT.

The avidity of the business interests of the Republican party to chuck the altruistic effort of Woodrow Wilson, in order to put big business in the saddle again at Washington is returning to damn those interests. Fred W. Uphem, treasurer of the Republican National Committee, is every inch a business man. He is in the lumber trade at Chicago, is president and director of other large concerns and was formerly president of the Illinois Manufacturers' Association.

Mr. Uphem has just returned from Europe with proposed remedies for her condition not fully defined but containing vast inferences. He believes we will have to step in and take a hand, "not as a participant in any League of Nations or world court, but by taking an inventory with a commission and by that inventory determining how much Germany can be made to pay." Then, he believes, we should conclude with a decision "which would compel the respect of the whole world for the United States."

Should "compel respect" how? Not, Mr. Uphem believes, by participating in an organization for the peaceful prevention of war and the adjudication of disputes. The only other way to "compel respect" is by the Hohenzollern-Mussolini method—by rattling the sword, and then, perhaps, by using it. The thing that is going the big business or in the United States is not the defeat of peace in itself, but the loss of trade and fears such as Mr. Uphem mentions: "If the United States does not act, Germany, left alone, seems destined to become a second Russia."

That, indeed, would be a misfortune to business in the United States and particularly unsettling to those afflicted with bolshevik neurasthenia. It would be a consequence of a condition which might have been prevented by the participation of the United States in world affairs through established channels at the time they were offered. But big business could not then see over the tariff-subsidy corncob in Washington.

THE POPULAR VOICE FOR PEACE.

H. G. Wells, in his great historical interpretation, passes judgment against the League of Nations because, he says, it is a league of foreign offices rather than an international league of peoples. Politics, he fears, will normally dominate such an organization.

The inevitable answer to this is that the only practical way for the peoples to achieve an international parliament of their own is to capture and dictate their own foreign offices through the ballot. The most outstanding attempt of a people to do this very thing is to be found today in Mr. Wells' own country.

Of the British popular desire for peace, says a Post-Dispatch correspondent in London, nobody can be in doubt. The League of Nations Union is everywhere active. The churches are working for peace, and labor spokesmen, led by Ramsay MacDonald, are everywhere declaiming against war. Popular real is expressing itself in monster mass meetings and processions whose ardor is not to be dampened by any sort of weather. Peace sentiment is already registering direct results in Parliament and the Government.

The British public, it has long been increasingly evident, are "sold" on the peace issue. It remains to be seen whether, in consequence, Great Britain is to become a victim of the more militaristic nations or whether the heaven of peace sentiment is to gain headway against jingoism among the people of France and Italy, the powers on which the weary world now looks with the greatest trepidation.

RELIGIOUS PEACE IN IRELAND.

Archbishop Curley of Baltimore, who has just returned from a five weeks' visit to Ireland, says that religious peace reigns there, as far as Southern Ireland is concerned, where the vast majority is of the Catholic faith. He points out that more Protestants hold office in localities where the Catholic vote predominates than anywhere else in the world. "They were elected because they are good and capable men, and their friends and neighbors, regardless of creed or teachings, voted for them," he said.

All of which is respectfully referred for careful consideration to our American religious fanatics, who are doing their best to foster ill-feeling and religious prejudice, setting friend against friend, neighbor against neighbor, and brother against brother. Here is Old Ireland, where religion has always been a most vital question, setting an example of amity and common sense in religious matters to the rest of the world. Voting for the best men, without regard to religious differences.

Americans have been accustomed to do this. Only a comparative few fanatics are preaching an opposite course. But the growth of their unthinking followers is alarming. And unless the great political parties repudiate the teachers of religious hatred, the state of this country will become far worse than in the days when religious differences meant the cracking of heads, or worse, in Ireland. The poison is being widely disseminated. It is a condition that can no longer be ignored.

AUTOMOBILING THROUGH INDIANA.

It is just as well to warn automobilists from other states who must pass through Indiana to look out for trouble there of a kind not to be feared elsewhere. Indiana is a great State, and there is no intention to depreciate its greatness. But, with the ascendancy of the Ku Klux Klan in its country districts the ancient and respectable order of horse-thief detectives was resurrected. This organization was originally founded to detect and convict horse thieves. About the time it got a legal standing, the horse began to be displaced by the automobile, and for years the "Horse Thieves," as they were popularly known, had little to do and were being forgotten.

Now, the Klan is backing up its assumed authority over the morals of the people by having its country members sworn in as Horse-Thief Detectives. They get little tin badges, and they are especially noisy and officious in the case of automobiles traveling through the State. They are apt to separate the members of a party and put them through the third degree, on suspicion, and without warrant.

So, "pack up your sins" and make up your mind to "be good" before you enter Indiana.

JAPAN THE STRICKEN.

(From the New York World.)

We are disposed to think of throngs as having had, at least in times past, a degree of political luster. After you see the historical layout in England you realize that the English throne, through all these hundreds of years, has been nothing more than a sublimated pie counter. Give Mayor Kiel a jeweled broadsword, slap him on the back in flashing armor and send him out for a fifth term backed by $8000 bowmen on the city payroll, and you have an almost perfect parallel to much of the history of England. Mr. Antwine said after viewing this gory movie that the Washington monument is good as far as it goes, but ought to go higher.

Upon our arrival in England we learned that the American experts on the condition of Europe were in the midst of their late-summer offensive on the continent. We accordingly made our plans to get behind these people, and if this maneuver is successful we ought to have them in full flight within the next few weeks. Socrates, who went out to the edge of town to inquire about flying over these people, says you can hear the talking in England. An Englishman said:

"It is sheer nonsense for members of your Congress and Senate to come over here to form an opinion as to what America might do to alleviate the condition of Europe. America had her chance to do the only thing that could have been done for Europe, and she refused to do it. Since then Europe has been resigned to getting herself out of her dilemma the best way she can. Maybe there is no way out. Maybe there never was one. It does no good talking about that now."

Which is about what we made of the situation before we left home, and it would not surprise us if most of the experts had not realized this themselves. If they do, it is going to save a lot of time in the next Congress. Asked if a single American had changed his mind since the issue came up, a Londoner said: "Yes, I believe there is one. I think Col. George Harvey is of anything but the opinion

THE OLD WORLD.

LONDON—After you have looked around through the historical museums and the one-time royal palaces of London and vicinity you begin to understand why George Washington refused to be King and are grateful to him.

We have had a great many Presidents since Washington, and nothing more sanguinary has attended exchanging one for the other than paying the usual bets. It has not been so in England, where for hundreds of years history was made picturesque by the knockouts between Kings. There is not a place in England big enough for a golf course where the throne was not won and lost upon some field famed in song and story, and had the thing ever got started it would likely have been the same with us.

Unfortunately, the British people were involved in these conflicts. Like ourselves, they have the weakness of partisanship, and they have probably taken more punishment for causes not really meaning anything to them one way or the other than any people on earth. One wonders how they could have been such geese and have come to the greatness in which we find them. From time as remote as the historians have been able to trace events they have hacked and hewed and shot at one another over the throne as if they had at stake some great principle like liberty or really were something more than the dupes of contending houses.

he held when he came to England. He cannot admit this more than he has done in taking the position that the United States should participate in the international court, but in view of everything, especially his personal quarrel with Mr. Wilson, he has gone a long way.

The British understand our politics quite well. They understand them much better than we understand British politics. It is no wonder at all to them that Mr. Wilson fell into the pit he did, and they know fully as much as we do how badly it stands with our political relation to Europe.

"It is just too jolly bad," they say.

And so it is.

It is becoming more and more evident that the politico-religious movement underlying the Hindu-Muslim affairs in India and sections of Northern India constitutes a menace to public tranquility of an extremely serious nature. This movement is being propagated sedulously by certain well-known aggressive reformers within Hinduism, and the unprejudiced scale on which forcible conversions of Mohammedans are now being obtained ought to be inspiring, in part at least, by the desire of the more eager Hindu politicians to increase the number of their adherents, with a view to gaining political advantages where some measure of communal representation on local bodies exists. Without a doubt, the movement has practically destroyed the last hope of Hindu-Muslim unity, while it has jeopardized the interests of the Hindus themselves and is proving a menace to law and order in the country. —Christian Science Monitor.

LIMITATION OF AERIAL NAVY.

From the Boston Globe.

THE men who know most about war have proposed a step contemplated to make it less likely. Those who fought in the last great conflict are considering a measure intended to limit the use of aircraft in future wars. The plan of the American Legion would carry forward the work of the Washington conference, which accomplished a limitation of arms in the sea. Many believe that aircraft will play a large and terrible part in any future war. It is to the air that the legion proposal turns, suggesting a reduction in the aerial navies of the nations. The recent maneuvers hereabouts of the alphas of this country serve to bring the problem home. The United States feels that it must not lag behind other nations in this new method of warfare. The only solution lies in the legion's proposal: An international conference to consider limitation of armaments of the air. National headquarters of the legion will conduct a national referendum on the subject, and, if opinion favors, will ask President Coolidge to call a world conference. From no other body in American life could such a request come with more force than from these who would thus seek to put into effect the principles for which they fought.

THE COOLIDGE BAND-WAGON.

From the New York World.

THE political band-wagon is always of a size to accommodate all who want to climb on it. The scramble to get on first and to keep others off continues quite as acute as if the vehicle were built to carry but a handful. Secretary Work is aboard with a statement which President Coolidge should find flattering enough. First Assistant Postmaster General John H. Bartlett wants to attend the next Republican convention as a delegate pledged to Coolidge's nomination. Moreover, Mr. Bartlett registers a protest against Senator Moses' effort to join the crowd. "The Senator is a band-wagon jumper," he states, "who has been on the outs with the Harding administration and is now attempting to make himself solid with the new line-up." Gov. Baxter of Maine, having gained a prerequisite preliminary publicity by flying his flag at half-mast to mark the death of his dog, now telegraphs that the Republicans of the State believe they have "the right man in the White House and intend to keep him there." Then the State of Oklahoma, which will be the first to choose delegates to the Republican convention, has declared fealty to the new order—and a few minor questions out of the way, such as Federal appointments—will cast the original Coolidge belt. The Coolidge boom is gathering momentum. Seats on the band-wagon are filling up. It's early, but the early worm often gets the patronage.

FUTURE USE OF GAS IN WAR.

From the Washington Post.

THE revolution in the art of war effected by the invention of gunpowder was of so startling a kind that it may without exaggeration be said to have changed the whole course of history. It was so in its results, it was so in its nature, that it was a determinative agent of the progress of the world. It was the discovery of gunpowder, as an engine of offense and defense, that still only in its infancy, and scientists are agreed that it is capable of almost limitless development. Hence it is that every nation has been secretly at work in attempts to devise new gases of greater power and range. Awaits the fearful havoc wrought by gas in the World War many persons are advocating the abolition of its use in warfare. But the chemists, of course, are not so humane. That may be a possibility, but it works out that way or not, it may be taken for granted that the laboratory experiments will be continued on an ever-increasing scale.

SHUDDERS AND LAUGHS
IN "CAT AND CANARY"

Mystery Play, at Jefferson, Excites Hysteria of Mingled Screams and Cackles.

BY RICHARD L. STOKES.

HAVING just been informed that she is heiress to her grandfather's fortune, Annabelle West, the terms of his will direct, prepared to sleep in the room in which that fantastic forebear gave up the ghost, 20 years ago this very night. It is in the lugubrious and creepy old country house of Glencloft Manor on the Hudson. Guided by an enigmatic letter, the girl uncovers a diamond necklace from a secret recess in the mantel.

She has no more than turned out the lights when a panel slides open in the wall at the head of the bed. A ghastly hand, with talon-like fingers, glimmers phosphorescent in the darkness, fumbles at her throat, smashes the jewels and dematerializes. When the terrified young woman recovers from a swoon, other guests try to convince her she has experienced a hallucination. To prove her sanity, she feels along the wall until she touches a hidden spring and the panel again flies open. Through the aperture tumbles the livid corpse of a man who has been strangled to death.

With these accumulated horrors the curtain falls on the second act of "The Cat and the Canary," by John Willard, one of the most flourishes of the current crop of mystery plays, with which the Shubert-Jefferson reopened last night. A large audience was held suspended in that constant oscillation between shrieks and laughter which is a symptom of hysteria.

Alternate Laughs and Screams. It is not only in more plausible dramatic construction, but in deftness of comic relief, that "The Cat and the Canary" seems superior to "The Bat," which no doubt serves as its model. Throughout the play the author is ingeniously occupied with alternately thrusting pins in the spectator's flesh and soothing the wounds with the salve of merriment. The diversion rises not merely from witty repartee, of which there are several instances, but from two characters who are comic, and whose clever ruse by which even appearing shudderome and super-natural turn out to be common places.

Some of the comedy, no doubt, is unintentional. During a first act of lower tension that succeeds in turning the audience reacted with laughter to incidents designed to provoke goose-flesh, such as the incantations of a voodoo mammy, and the frisking of a spectral figure in a sheet which Miss West beat to the library of mingled handclapping and screams of apprehension.

According to the story, an eccentric millionaire who detested his relatives left a will to be opened in the library of his house at the moment of the twentieth anniversary of his death. With the attorney who has acted as executor, there assemble the six surviving heirs—a garrulous and malicious elderly matron, two young women, one of them Annabelle West, an artist friend, Green, a village, a ribbon clerk, a poet and a veterinary surgeon, who, when the farmers abandoned horses for flivvers, turned automobile doctor and opened a garage.

The Horror Is On. The estate goes to Miss West, she being the only descendant bearing the surname of her grandfather. But because of a strain of insanity in the family, the testator added a codicil, providing that she should inherit only in case of her possessing a sound mind. Should she be demented, the fortune is to go to another heir, named in a sealed envelope. Thereupon, one of the disappointed relatives conceives the ambitious idea of terrifying the girl into madness.

There ensue knockings on the wall, of sinister rhythm; the sough and moan of ghostly breathings; the sudden uncanny tolling of a clock's bell, although all the clocks in the house have been stopped for 20 years; the rush of invisible phantoms through the halls; the opening and closing of doors by unseen hands; the unfolding of secret panels and sections in the bookcases.

The lawyer and Miss West are alone in the library, she sitting with her back turned. He is uttering a warning of danger. Abruptly his voice ceases. When she turns, he seems to have vanished in this air. The fact was that a bookcase swung open behind him, and two skeleton-like hands grasped him by the throat, dragging him into the dark room. It was his body which later toppled out of the closet.

There comes an attendant from a neighboring asylum, with a tale of the escape of a criminal lunatic, a killer, with the peculiar peculiarity of disemboweling his victims with his claws, like a cat. And one of the most gripping moments comes when Miss West is alone, and there creeps in upon her a creature with don't look, death-pale visage and tiger-like claws—but the program begs us not to tell.

It Is Excellently Played. The unmaking of the author of this conspiracy, himself a madman, comes in a thrilling revelation just before the conclusion. "If you like this play," begs a program note, "please tell your friends; but don't tell them how it ends." One may add that it proved not impossible, by using a process of elimination, to pick the miscreant from the half dozen suspects by the middle of the second act.

This is not the New York

Mystery Play, at Jefferson, Excites Hysteria of Mingled Screams and Cackles.

HAVING just been informed that the actress who is the granddame of the play, Annabelle West, is to appear in the room in which the dramatic forebear gave up the ghost, 25 years ago this very night. It is in the hazy and creepy old country house of Glendell Manor on the Hudson. Guided by an enigmatic wraith, the girl unearths a diamond necklace from a secret recess in the mantle.

She has no more than turned out the lights when a panel slides open in the wall at the head of the bed, a ghastly hand, with talon-like fingers, glimmers phosphorescently in the darkness, fumbles at her throat, matches the jewels and dematerializes. But after that the author's shivery devices won respect. As told in darkness left in the theater, preparatory to the rise of the final curtain, there was an eerie demonstration all over the house of mingled handclapping and screams of apprehension.

RETURNS FROM EAST

—Black Brothers Photograph.

MISS FRANCES LANE CARTER, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Scott Carter of 4319 Lindell boulevard, has selected Thursday, Oct. 4, as the day for her marriage to Walker Mason, son of Mrs. William Harrison Mason of 4749 Westminster place. Christ Church Cathedral will be the scene of the ceremony, with Dean Scarlett officiating and a few friends will follow. Mrs. Carter and Miss Carter returned Saturday from Magnolia Beach, Mass., where they were guests for the summer of the bride-elect's grandmother, Mrs. Francis A. Lane of the Buckingham Hotel.

Announcement has been made by Mr. and Mrs. Marshall Hodgman of 5379 Waterman avenue, of the engagement of their daughter, Miss Elizabeth Hodgman, to William M. B. Freeman of Newton, Mass.

The wedding date has not been set. Mr. and Mrs. Hodgman, Miss Elizabeth, and another daughter, Miss Eunice, are spending the summer in St. Andrews, Canada. They will return to St. Louis in October and plans for the wedding will be announced at that time. The prospective bride was educated in the East, and has traveled much. She made her debut several seasons ago and is a member of the Junior League.

Mrs. Harvey G. Mudd of 47 Vandeventer place will return the last of September from Northeast Harbor, Me. Mr. Mudd is expected in St. Louis Sept. 20.

Dr. and Mrs. Frederick E. Woodruff of 4 Kingsbury place and their daughter, Miss Louise, have returned from a tour of the Pacific Coast and Yukon territory.

H. J. Pettengill of the St. Louis Country Club grounds is visiting his son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Russell A. Pettengill, at their cottage, "Spruceview," at Beverly Farms, Mass. Mrs. Pettengill is in Michigan.

Mrs. Mildred Stribling of 5102 Waterman avenue, who, with her children, has been the guest of Mr. and Mrs. George D. Markham at their summer home in Dublin, N. H., is at the New Ocean House, Swampscott, Mass., for the last season.

St. Louis visitors at Marblehead and Swampscott, Mass., include Miss Grace M. Bell of 5045 Westminster place and Mrs. George Smith McGrew, mother of Mrs. Albert Bond Lambert of 2 Horseshoe place.

Mr. and Mrs. Guy H. Wright of the Kingsbury apartments are in Dixville Notch, N. H., for a visit after moving through New England. They will depart soon on a trip through Canada, returning home in several weeks.

Mrs. George F. Powell of 4440 Maryland avenue and her young daughter, Nancy, plan to return Sept. 12 from Douglas, Mich., where they had a cottage for the season.

Mrs. Anna McLain Sankey of Westminster place and her daughter, Miss Virginia Catherine, have returned from the Edgewater Beach Hotel, Chicago. While there Mrs. Sankey attended the Drama League Institute.

Mr. and Mrs. James C. Travilla of 6409 Enright avenue announce the marriage of their daughter, Miss Dorothy, to George Franz, on Saturday. Mr. and Mrs. Franz have but a second company, recruited for the play's Chicago run. It is an amateur troupe, none the less, led by charming Miss Emily Taft, daughter of Loretta Taft, the sculptor. Louis Kimball gives an attractive picture of the diffident young horse-doctor, who constitutionally is timid as a mouse, but drives himself by force of will to achieve heroism. The play will remain here two weeks.

Its name seems derived from a passage read by Miss Taft from an old manuscript. This emotion, it is said, is a delusion. For instance, if a canary in a cage is placed on a table, and a cat is permitted to paw about it, the canary almost invariably jumps out of its cage in terror, not perceiving that it is protected by the cage. As another character aptly retorted, Annabelle West had no cage.

Grace La Rue and Hale Hamilton in Comedy Playlet at Orpheum.

It is strange how a married couple can be in love with each other and not know it until something happens to make them see themselves from a new angle.

John and Ruth Overton, as played by Mr. and Mrs. Hale Hamilton (Mrs. Hamilton is Grace La Rue), in their sketch "Dangerous Advice," home the Orpheum this week, have been married so long that they have become bored with each other's company. They even spoof each other about trying to appear young and attractive. John goes to the club to play bridge and Ruth remains home and tries to read a novel. Then something happens.

When John returns he expects a scolding. He does not get it. He seeks an explanation. Ruth tells him what has taken place during his absence. She thinks she ought to be surprised, but he convinces her that she has fallen into a trap set by himself. She is angry at first, but as it dawns upon her that she has been as much to blame as her

KEATON'S "THREE AGES" A COMIC NOVELTY

Constance Talmadge Shows Her Versatility With Excellent Impersonation of "Dulcy."

BUSTER KEATON'S much-exploited full-length comedy, "Three Ages," which opened yesterday at the Delmonte, is a novelty in its line which is sure to please that large section of the movie-going public which enjoys the antics of the frozen-faced comedian. In some respects it is his most ambitious effort. The theme is love through all the ages and underlying the comedy is the serious thought that while physical prowess in the stone age, luck in the Roman age and a bank account in the modern age have been considered the surest agencies in winning a bride there has always been a chance for the suitor with brains against strength, chance and wealth. The story follows the fortunes of a resourceful wooer and shows how he would have triumphed in three periods of the world's history. Keaton has adapted many of the sure-fire laugh-getting devices to prehistoric and classic times and has injected many new ones. He demonstrates that it is just as funny to see a Roman centurion fall through a trap door as to see a modern policeman fall through a coal hole. There is one most impressive setting representing the Roman Coliseum in days of its glory and here is staged the funny chariot race which Buster wins with a team of sledge dogs. Margaret Leahy, the English actress sponsored by the Talmadge sisters, makes her debut in this picture. It is more like an initiation, as she is pulled around by the hair in the cave-man episodes and none so gently treated in the others. She is so busy being dragged about that she has little chance to act. On the Delmonte bill also are several stage features and an Our Gang comedy, "Back Stage," which is the funniest short feature shown here this season.

MISS ELEANOR FIDLER, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Fidler of 6227 Waterman avenue, has just returned from a tour of the East. She was graduated in June from Mary Institute and will enter Washington University in the fall.

departed on an Eastern honeymoon trip and will be at home after Oct. 1 in the Garden Court Apartments.

Mrs. Robert Filley of the Buckingham Hotel has returned from Harbor Point, Mich.

Mrs. Amos Thayer of 5092 Waterman avenue, her daughter, Mrs. Louise Thayer Burbank, and the latter's son, Thayer, will return this week from Waukegan, Mich.

Miss Elizabeth Robert, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Douglas W. Robert of 5240 Washington boulevard, is the guest of Miss Eleanor Richards at Hefield, Mich. Mrs. Robert and other members of her family have returned from the North.

Miss Dorothy Galloway, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Galloway of 4171 Magnolia avenue, returned home last week from Yarmouth, Mass., where she visited Miss Sally Hughes Phillips, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Z. B. T. Phillips, formerly of St. Louis. In Brooklyn, she was the guest of a cousin, Miss Doris Galloway.

Mrs. Samuel Gordon of 38 Westmoreland place and daughter, Miss Anniquam, returned yesterday from Anniquam, Mass., where they spent the summer.

Mrs. Walter Duke Thompson of 5045 Lindell boulevard and daughters, Misses Mabel Green and Marion Thompson, have returned home from Three Lakes, Wis.

Mrs. Louis P. Alon of 31 Kingsbury place and two daughters, expected home tomorrow from Banff, Can.

Mr. and Mrs. Chauncey P. Heath of 788 Yale avenue, University City, and two daughters, have returned from a tour of Wisconsin.

Mrs. Phil A. Higgins of 5536 Pershing avenue will be hostess to the Emerson Club at a luncheon bridge Wednesday at the North Hills Country Club.

Mrs. Elias S. Michael of 4332 Westminster place has returned to St. Louis after taking a special course at Columbia University.

husband, both kiss and make up. The sketch is by Vincent LaRocca. The Hamiltons are ably supported by Noel Leslie.

Miss La Rue appears on the bill twice. In the early part of the program she presents a group of ballads, including "I Passed by Your Window," "Broken Toys," "Trees," and "Cabaret Rose."

David Seed, the "Eddie Cantor" of vaudeville, and his partner, Ralph Austin, old favorites at the Orpheum, furnish many laughs in "Things and Stuff." Emilie Lea, assisted by Sam Kaufman, her dancing partner, and Clarence Rock, at the piano, reminds one of Irene Castle, in a dancing act called "Rehearsing for Vaudeville."

The other good acts include Leon Vavara, in "The Evolution of a Pianist"; Frank Marino and Tony Martin, in an Italian dialect slapstick act; the Five Balas, in novelty acrobatics; and Harry Stoddard and his jazz orchestra.

"Louville Lou" (The Vampire Lady) is stealing into very large numbers and trotting away with all the bouquets. Ted Lewis' Columbia Record of this go-getter is the vampire's costliest favor yet he had.

"Beale Street Mama" is the whistling selection on the other side. At Columbia Dealers A-3892 75c.

SCENES OF LONG AGO IN "LITTLE OLD NEW YORK"

Splendid Acting of Alexis Luce Bolsters Performance at the Empress.

THE picturesque figures of America's metropolis of a century ago stride out of the past in their satin coats, huge standing collars and enormous neckties to greet the playgoer who this week journeys to the Empress Theater, where the Woodward Players are giving the first St. Louis presentation of Rida Johnson Young's comedy, "Little Old New York."

One meets Washington Irving, a roistering young fellow not yet celebrated for the works of his pen but enjoying no little renown for his aptitude at making pretty speeches to the ladies; and there is John Jacob Astor, austere and dignified, laying the foundation for his fortune by judicious dickerings in Wall Street residence property and scoffing at the newly invented steam engine as a toy. There is also young Cornelius Vanderbilt, coming into public notice with his Staten Island ferry, which had reached the unheard-of prosperity of eight or nine passenger fares a day.

All these quaint characterizations, harking back to a day long past, exercise in themselves an appeal which might explain the popularity which the work enjoyed for two seasons or more in New York, but at last night's performance it seemed that the final outcome was a capacity audience. Here one found a fragile and transparent story made absorbing, even convincing, by sincere acting.

Masquerades As a Boy.

The situation might not have taken on so many amusing complications had not Patricia O'Day reluctantly consented to carry on the fight for her brother's inheritance in the guise of a boy and Larry Delevan might not then have had to resort to such hazardous measures as prize fight wagers to get money for his steamboat venture, but that might have spoiled the love story.

Of course, no body is left for a moment in doubt about what the final outcome will be when little hot-headed Pat is installed in the home of his—her guardian. Delevan's attentions to Arianna De Puyster, a genteel young person with marked susceptibility to "vulgarities," are well on the way to provoking jealous Pat's denouement when the prize fight episode intervenes and makes it complete. Seeing Delevan's last penny about to take its departure with the savage punneling administered to "Bully Boy" Brewster, Pat rings the firebell and precipitates a riot which is

His pocket ship with a cabin for two is pressed into service both as a honeymooner's craft and a fugitive's retreat and Delevan gets both the fortune and the girl.
The costumes and settings were striking and the prize fight scene in the third act left little to be desired of realism. Capable support was supplied by K. Raymond Brown as Astor, Sherold Page as Irving, Frank McNeill as Vanderbilt, and Bobby Reed, Edward Schilling, Ann Austin, Mack Linn, Alvan Simms, Sylvia Farnese, Charles Volvile, D. Sylvan and Alice Baker.

DESCRIBES FLIGHT IN POLAR REGION
Head of Expedition Which Was to Aid Amundsen Says Plan Is Feasible.

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Sept. 10.—Hakon H. Hammer, organizer of the Hammer Junker Expedition, which was to attempt to assist Capt. Raold Amundsen in the event that he had made his abandoned flight over the North Pole, returned to New York on the steamship Ohio of the Royal Mail Line from Hamburg yesterday, after demonstrating the feasibility of flying to the pole by airplane.

Hammer, who had Spitzbergen for his base, made no actual attempt to fly over the pole because he considered such an attempt would have been unethical. He made his base at Ice Fiord, Spitzbergen, a distance of 600 miles from the pole. Twenty-one flights were made during the month of July, the longest of them being one of 700 miles. This proved the pole could have been reached by air, Mr. Hammer said.

The flights could be made only when the sun was shining, the motion of the plane and the magnetic influences of the region rendering the machine's compass valueless. Copies of the 100 or more pictures taken from the air by the expedition's photographer are to be given to the Norwegian scientific expedition for use in making charts of the territory flown over.

Among the pictures are several taken by sunlight at 2 and 3 o'clock in the morning. The sun there is in the sky almost constantly during the months of May, June and July.

Hammer said that during these months there is little variation in the temperature; that is only from 2 to 4 degrees above the freezing point 5000 feet in the air and down below on land as well. There is no life in the country. Virtually the only vegetation is a dwarf birch tree that grows to a height of a half inch. On his flights Mr. Hammer approached the pole as close as the 32d degree, about 400 miles from it. He had only one plane and eight men in the expedition. Flying was made particularly hazardous by the fact that the plane was equipped with pontoons. If a landing had been necessary it would have been impossible for the machine to take off from the ice.

Hammer said the trial flights were a triumph for the commercial type of airplane. The machine he used was a Junker with a flying radius of 18 hours.

Capt. Raold Amundsen planned to make a flight over the pole from Wainwright, Alaska. For some reason unknown to Mr. Hammer, Capt. Amundsen's attempt was abandoned.

Hammer said he may make an attempt to fly to the pole next year, using three planes and a mother ship in his expedition.

MAYOR CRITICISED FOR VETOING BRIDGE APPROACH MEASURE

Tenth Ward Association Thinks Condemnation of Land in Illinois Should Proceed Regardless of Cost.

The Tenth Ward Improvement and Taxpayers' Association yesterday adopted a resolution criticising Mayor Kiel for vetoing a bill, which directed the City Counselor to begin condemnation of land on the Illinois side of the river, for the site of the proposed northeast railroad approach to the Free Bridge. The $87,372,500 bond issue voted for public improvements included $1,500,000 for this approach and a like sum for a railroad approach at the St. Louis end of the bridge.

The Mayor vetoed the measure on July 2, last, on the ground it was passed by the Board of Aldermen without first being approved by the Citizens' Supervisory Committee on bond issue expenditures, thus ignoring an administration pledge. Veto of the bill had been urged by the Supervisory Committee and the Chamber of Commerce. City engineers have estimated the approach, as proposed, would cost approximately $5,000,000, or more than three times the amount authorized. Construction of the approach, regardless of the cost, has been advocated by one faction of the Tenth

CITY'S FUND FOR QUAKE RELIEF NOW $70,300

Amount Is $29,700 Short of Quota Set—Committee Re-news Efforts.

Contributions to the $100,000 fund sought in St. Louis by the Red Cross for the relief of earthquake sufferers in Japan this morning totaled approximately $70,300, the Campaign Committee reported. This amount is $29,700 short of the quota set for the city in the national campaign to raise $5,000,000 for immediate relief work.

The committee had expected to complete the St. Louis campaign at noon today, but decided to continue it until tomorrow morning, or as long thereafter as necessary to raise the $100,000.

Reports on the campaign progress this morning included cash on hand, $55,302.04; pledge of $10,000 by the Associated Retailers; small cash contributions in envelopes, not yet tabulated, estimated at $500.

Further Contributions Urged.
 Festus J. Wade, treasurer of the St. Louis chapter of the Red Cross, and Melville L. Wilkinson, chairman of the campaign, today urged further contributions so that the city's quota would be available at once for supplies being purchased and assembled on the Pacific Coast by the Red Cross for immediate shipment to Japan.

Wade declared there were more than 1000 business concerns in St. Louis worth $500,000 or more, but that only 133 of these had contributed $100 or more to the fund.

Approximately 200,000 Red Cross envelopes were distributed on street cars Saturday by Boy Scouts, Wade said, and 1500 of these have been turned in. They contained a total of $539. Other responses from this distribution of envelopes are expected through the mails.

The committee also is receiving numerous contributions in envelopes distributed last week by letter carriers, but most of these contain small amounts, Wade stated, some of them containing a penny, nickel or dime.

Executive Committee Meets.
 Members of the Executive Committee met today to receive the report. Another meeting will be held tomorrow morning, and if the $100,000 quota is not raised by that time, workers will be sent out to seek funds by personal solicitation. The committee today sent 150 telegrams to individuals and firms, and 400 others were called by telephone.

Among the contributions of more than $100 reported last night are today are: George L. Allen, $1000; St. Louis Cathedral, $401.57; St. Louis Mazda Lamp Division, General Electric Co., $250; Busch-Sulzer Bros. Diesel Engine Co., $250; Union Electric Light & Power Co., $250; Landau Grocery Co., $400; Lesser Goldman Cotton Co., $200; employees St. Louis Mazda Lamp Division, General Electric, $162.45; St. Croix's Church, $150; Hettman-Kleinhauser Clothing Co., $150.

Donors of $100 each included St. Francis Xavier Church, King Brand Manufacturing Co., Hecht Bros. Clothing Co., Marx & Haas Clothing Co., Laclede Christie Clay Products Co., Magnolia Lodge, A. F. and A. M., Trorlicht-Duncker Carpet Co., King-Brinsmade Mercantile Co., R. E. Funsten Co., Robert M. Jones, L. W. Childress, Pauly Jail Building Co., Southern Acid & Sulphur Co., St. Louis Coöperage Co., Thomas & Proetz Lumber Co., Abraham Fur Co., Harry Scullin and Thomas W. West.

PROMINENT MISSOURI REPUBLICAN FOUND DROWNED
 R. S. Robertson, Candidate for Judgeship in 1922, Apparently Fell Into Creek.

By the Associated Press.
 SEDALIA, Mo., Sept. 10.—Robert S. Robertson, referee in bankruptcy for the western district of Missouri, and well-known Republican of Central Missouri, was found dead in a shallow pool of water in Richland Creek, near Florence, Morgan County, early this morning, death being due supposedly to drowning.

Robertson, with his wife, left here Sunday for an outing. Leaving her for a brief time he evidently was making his way back when he fell into the stream, and probably dazed, was unable to save himself. A search of several hours, instituted when Mrs. Robertson became alarmed at his failure to return, was made for him before his body was located.

For a term of several years Robertson had been an active member of the Pettis County bar and recently associated himself with the firm of Lamm & Lamm, the senior member of which is former Supreme Justice Henry Lamm. He was a member of the Young Men's Republican Club of Missouri and had been active in local and State politics since beginning law practice.

In the last campaign he was a candidate for Supreme Judge on the State ticket. At the time of his death he was attorney for the Missouri State fair.

A Clothes Dryer

For Every Home and Apartment Installed at Moderate Cost

SNOW WHITE

CABINET CLOTHES DRYER

TRADE MARK REG.

Snow White brings to every home and apartment all the advantages of a Clothes Dryer formerly only attainable in the most expensive residences—and brings them at moderate cost.

Here is the greatest convenience to housewives since the washing machine. Think of the time and labor saved! No loss of time between the operations of washing and ironing. Wash at 9 and you can iron at 10. Snow White will have your washing dry in from 10 to 30 minutes. Snow White defies the weather. You can wash on rainy days and enjoy the sunny ones!

Stop dragging heavy baskets of wet wash from the basement to the line in the yard. With Snow White your clothes go directly from the washing machine to the Dryer. The damage to your clothes by the line in the yard runs into many dollars each year. The flapping in the wind; the occasional breaking of the line; the torn fabric due to clothes pins; the long period of exposure, due to dampness in the air; the embarrassment of having your clothes exposed—all these are done away with by the use of Snow White.

The season is here when you need a Dryer more than any other time. Why not buy 52 bright, sunny washdays—52 days of leisure that formerly were spent in ironing? Why depend upon the weather for wash day? Snow White is an insurance policy against colds and protection for your clothes. The cost is much less than the annoyance, danger and worry of the old method—and the terms of payment are such that the money will hardly be missed. Phone or write for a representative to call, or for literature. It is not an obligation to buy.

Snow White makes clothes fresh and sweet-smelling. It is so designed that a large volume of dry, hot air passes over the clothes and out of the vent pipe, removing the moisture quickly. This movement of air is so rapid that there is a complete change every 20 seconds. When clothes are not dried rapidly enough chemical action sets in and the result is that they turn yellow. With Snow White the drying time is so short that such action cannot take place, and the clothes, as a result, remain white, fresh and sweet-smelling.

Even small home owners need not hesitate installing this wonderful Dryer. Snow White requires but 2x5 feet of floor space and can be installed in less than an hour's time. There are no moving parts—nothing to get out of order.

Snow White passed its experimental stage more than 20 years ago when the Williamson Heater Co. began supplying the largest and finest homes—the only ones who could afford such a utility. Today, due to the large production, they can offer Snow White at a price well within every home owner's reach.

Dempsey in Fine Condition, but Appears to Be Easy to Hit With A Right Hand Punch, Wray Writes

Champion, as Lithe and Pantherish as When He Defeated Willard at Toledo, Seems to Have Lost Some of the Devastating Power of His Blows—Training for Strength.

By John E. Wray,
Sports Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

SARATOGA, Sept. 10.—Giant Killer Jack Dempsey, as lithe and pantherish of movement as when, in the halcyon days of Toledo, he brought low the titanic Jess Willard, yesterday displayed himself and his ring wares before 700 $1.10 customers at his camp at White Sulphur Springs, 11 miles from here.

Dempsey looked good, but was not impressive.

After he had finished four rounds of work with Farmer Lodge, a 235-pound Minnesota training partner, and George Godfrey, a big negro with enormous biceps, Dempsey eased off with one round each against the ancient Denver Jack Geyer and Paul Gallico, a newspaper man. At the conclusion the critics' tongues began to wag and the substance of opinion may be reduced to about the following consensus:

1. That Dempsey is in good condition, but not so good as at Atlantic City or Toledo. He is better than at Shelby.

2. That he has lost something of his hitting power.

3. That he is easy to hit with a right hand.

4. That he is not gearing up his speed, but is training for strength and power.

Dempsey is lean and somewhat lashed. He weighs not more than 192 pounds and so slim are his lines and so long his legs in proportion to his body that he does not seem to scale what he really weighs.

What this figure is nobody knows by actual observation, except Kearns and his trainers. He will not weigh for news seekers.

What it is about a fighter that leads him to conceal his weight has never been clear. But if there is any misrepresentation about Dempsey's poundage, it is that he is not as heavy as his helpers or as he himself says. Dempsey does not look 190 pounds.

When Dempsey enters the ring with Firpo there will be vast difference in their appearance. Dempsey will appear like a middleweight, beside the burly, big-bodied, shaggy moustache from Argentina. He will be 10 pounds lighter or more and at a physical disadvantage in height, reach and strength.

Jack's Condition Is Fine.

But let this be understood: Dempsey's physical condition, even for a slight cold, is fine. He lacks the mahogany tone of his Toledo health, when he was at his peak. But he is a graceful but forceful figure of a man.

When he stepped into the ring to begin his stuff he was clad in full length blue trunks, but the hollow below the short ribs showed that he was down to his right weight and

He wore a new headgear with polished aluminum ear pieces which led the wags of the press to suggest that he avoided getting a tin ear by wearing one. In respect Dempsey differs from Firpo who enters the ring without head protection other than his black mane of hair.

Dempsey, too, uses a smaller glove than the 16-ounce pillow with which Firpo cutters or clips his foes. A helper said they weighed 14 ounces, but they looked to weigh less. His sparring mates' gloves were larger in size.

The last may not tend to make happy those who have bet the fight will end in one round—and there are plenty of these.

Dempsey Interested in Reports Brought From Camp of Pampas Bull

SARATOGA, N. Y., Sept. 10.

JACK DEMPSEY may not be worried about his coming fight with Firpo. But he eagerly absorbs all information brought to his camp by newspaper men who are traveling back and forth. He is as greatly mystified as to the Argentine's prowess as nearly all observers seem to be.

Yesterday a new crop of reporters brought him the latest from the Argentine's camp. Jack drank it in and asked questions.

He wanted to know how John Lester Johnson showed against Firpo and listened intently to comments about Firpo's speed and method of using his punches.

"I dropped Willard seven times in one round at Toledo and Firpo didn't put him down at all, apparently," Jack commented. "Looks like I ought to bring Firpo down quick. If he won't fall, maybe I'll do some footwork."

"Shooting any you've got in one round takes the stuff out of you. I was no good in the second round at Toledo because I used up a lot of strength in the first round. If Firpo stands up under the first two rounds I might have to use a different style of battle."

LOUIS MADSEN

Star right hander, who yesterday hurled his team to a place in the association final by defeating the Smiths with seven hits. He opposed the Muckerman-Cushmans in the first round and beat them, 5 to 2, with three hits. This game was protested and ordered replayed. In the replay last Friday, Madsen again won, holding his rivals to five safeties. In three elimination contests he has permitted but 15 hits, an average of 5 a game.

Ring Lardner Sees Dempsey and Warns Jack He Should Ought to Watch Out for the Bull's Right

Champion Is Awfully Glad to Be Given Such a Valuable Tip—Great Crowd Turns Out at Saratoga to See Ring Come In—Tom Mix on Same Train.

By Ring W. Lardner.

SARATOGA SPRINGS, New York, Sept. 10.—Residents of Saratoga must read in the paper that I was about due to arrive here as they was a big crowd down to see me come in though I had not told nobody what train I was coming on. Tom Mix was on the same train and also got off here. He was wearing a cowboy hat and I guess it is a custom amongst cinema performers to always wear some article of clothing indicating what kind of parts they play and it occurred to me that it would be a good idea if everybody would wear some article of clothing typical of their profession so as a person looking at them would not half to strain themselves guessing.

Like for inst. Dempsey might go around with his hands taped and personally I could appear on the streets with a typewriter ribbon in my hair and a vest made out of newspapers. This would give everybody a square deal and would do away with such humiliating experiences as I had at the station here, namely Mr. Mix got in a taxi just behind mine and the crowd all looked at him because they did not know who I was.

I asked the taxi man how much would it be to take me out to the lake where Dempsey is training and he says he charged six dollars for a leave out. So I asked him if he thought I looked like a leave out but he made no reply. On the way to the camp we come up behind a bunch of cows that took drive into a ditch to get past them. I suppose when Tom Mix's taxi came along the cows jumped over the fence and give him the right of way.

Bouncing From Tree to Tree.

I was too late to see the champion work out and can't tell you yet how he compares with Firpo, but they seemed to be more of a air of confidence amongst his followers than was evident at the Wild Bull's joint. I reached Mr. Luther's resort in a downpour of rain and in the midst of a picnic which was being indulged in by the foremen of the General Electric Company. It was a damp picnic. The crowd was so big that it was impossible to get service unless you was with somebody with a drag, so I kind of attached my self to Dempsey's brother Bernard.

After a long argument in regards to religion I expressed the desire to see the champion of the world and Bernard led the way to the cottage where Jack sleeps. It is about 400 feet from Luther's and the path winds amongst trees. We went in pitch darkness and I hit all the trees but none of them fell down. They was about 50 visitors in the cottage so the champ did not mind just one more and acted like he was glad to see me. He asked me what I thought of Firpo and I says if I was you I would look out for his right hand.

Kamm's Fine Play Beats Browns in Final With Sox

Chicago Makes Five of Six Hits Off Vangilder in First Three Innings.

KAMM STEALS HOME
Expensive Coast Leaguer Also Drives In a Run and Starts Double Play.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CHICAGO, Sept. 10.—Every time Willie Kamm makes a sensational fielding play, steals a base or drives in a run that materially affects the outcome of a game, the conventional statement to make is that he justified the expenditure of that $100,000 which the Chicago club paid to San Francisco for his services. It is clearly the order of the day to say that Willie justified his purchase in the final game of the series with the Browns yesterday. He was directly responsible for the 4 to 2 victory over Vangilder that sent the Browns away with only an even break in four games.

Willie made a steal of home in the second inning with the run that decided the issue. He dashed over the plate while the Browns were throwing the ball and the infield after having retired Blankenship on a long fly. Then in the third, just to make the justification more definite, Willie crashed out a two-base hit that scored Mostil with the fourth run.

Willie on Defense.
Nor was that all. In the second inning the Browns threatened but in came Willie on a slow roller down the third base line and turned it into a double play that stopped the Browns completely. O'yes, Bill again justified the expenditure of that $100,000. If every instance where in Bill justifies his purchase were taken separately, he clearly would have passed the $5,000,000 mark by this time.

Vangilder gave the Sox only six hits but five of them came in the first three innings, just when Willie Kamm was justifying his right to be in the American League. Blankenship pitched for Chicago and gave the Browns seven hits.

The Browns departed for Terre Haute, where they play an exhibition game today and then carry eastward for a series with the Philadelphia Athletics.

Grone in Final of C. of C. Tourney

Lon Grone entered into the final round of the Junior Chamber of Commerce annual tennis tournament when he defeated Hobbeltmann in straight sets, 6-1, 6-2, 6-4.

Grone's speedy service and placing was responsible for his decisive victories.

The third round of the singles proved interesting. Holmes worked hard to gain his 7-5, 6-3 verdict over Hilger. Hobbeltmann won his match from Pistor in easy fashion, 6-1, 7-5.

Eddie Dyer, Making His First Big League Start, Blanks Cubs, 3-0

Pitcher Who Was Converted Into Outfielder but Returned to Hurling Duty, Recently Recalled From Texas League—No Baseball Here Until Friday.

By Joseph F. Holland.
Eddie Dyer is a young man 23 years old who believes that if a situation to be desired is not attainable in one way, it can be reached in another. Early this spring Eddie, a former pitcher, reported to the Cardinal training camp in Bradenton, Fla., as an outfield prospect. But the woods were filled with outfielders and although he managed to remain with the club for a time, he was eventually sent back to the Texas League.

There he returned to his old position as a pitcher. He had made quite a reputation as a hurler in his school career at Rice Institute, Texas, and his new employers capitalized his popularity. Then he came back to the Cardinals.

He had his first chance to show his ability yesterday when Burt Shotton found the Cardinal pitching staff completely worked out as a result of double-headers. So he gave Dyer an opportunity to start a game and flooded the "bullpen" with warm-up prospects to meet any emergency. But the emergency never arrived. Eddie clipped the corners and pitched to weaknesses so well that he shut out the Chicago Cubs, 3 to 0.

One Man Reaches Third.
Only one man reached third base and that was Cliff Heathcote, in the fifth inning. Cliff was hit by a pitched ball and took third on O'Farrell's single to left, a liner that Blades reached but could not hold.

Outside of that no Cub reached third base. They made a total of eight hits. Dyer received excellent support and four double plays cut down the possibilities of Chicago scoring. One of the most sensational double plays of the year averted a threatening situation in the ninth.

Grimes walked to open the final inning, the second pass given by

and George relayed it to Hornsby in time to double the batter. Hack Miller followed with a single, merely to emphasize the seriousness of the situation which would have prevailed had Freigau missed that smash of Kelleher's.

Cardinals Score Two in Second.
The Cardinals won the game by scoring twice in the second inning. Heinie Mueller, the leading hitter of the day, opened the inning with a single to center. The crowd gasped while Heinie narrowly escaped being caught off first. Then it gasped again when Stock doubled to left.

Hy Myers, coaching at third, signaled Mueller to stop at third, but Heinie tore on to the plate and scored. Clemons drove a single to center after two were out to score Stock.

Jack Smith's homer accounted for the final score in the third inning. Thereafter Kaufmann and Dyer settled down and, although Mueller singled and Stock doubled in the eighth, neither team scored.

There will be no baseball in St. Louis until Friday, when the Phillies call for a series of three games.

Freight Accounts Nose Out Smiths; Santa Cruz Wins

Survivors Play for Municipal Baseball Association Championship Next Sunday.

Santa Cruz of the Knights of Columbus League and the Freight Accounts of the Missouri-Pacific League will play for the 1923 Municipal Baseball Association championship in a double header next Sunday. These two nines won yesterday in the semifinal round of contests played at Fairground.

Santa Cruz eliminated the Rhodes-Burford, Empire League champions, 3 to 2, while the Freight Accounts nosed out the Smiths of the Mercantile League, 8 to 7.

A crowd estimated at 12,000, the largest that ever witnessed a Municipal elimination double header, saw the contests.

The Santa Cruz-Rhodes-Burford game was featured by good pitching from Durbin, the southpaw star of the winners and Blake, the ace of the Rhodes staff. Durbin was found for eight hits, while his opponent held Santa Cruz to six. However, the hits off Blake came at opportune times. Blake's wildness also helped in his downfall.

Freights Win in Ninth.
Santa Cruz scored a run in the first as the result of three passes and an error. The Burfords counted in the fourth on two hits and a steal, but the K. of C. leaguers matched this in their portion, the result of an error and Houlihan's hit. In the sixth, the Burfords broke through to tie the count, but Santa Cruz scored in the eighth to win the game. Blake walked six men, while Durbin "dead headed" only one.

The Freight Accounts, playing their third game in as many days, waged an uphill battle to win from the Smiths. Madsen, the Missouri-Pacific League team's star, was on the hill and permitted seven safeties, while his mates made 12 off Parquher. There were 11 errors in this contest, the winners making five and the losers six.

The Freights counted the deciding run in the ninth, when Ryan's double sent Koenig across the plate after two batters had been retired.

Bethlehem Beats Zions.

Bethlehem scored five runs in the seventh inning and defeated Zions, 9 to 6, in the feature game of the Concordia Baseball League at High School Field yesterday. Bethany nosed out Emmaus, 7 to 6, in the other contest. Bethlehem has a 4-2 record and leads, while Bethany with 2-3 is second.

Simple Exercise to Reduce Hips

THE slim hips have ever been a goal toward which to work. The woman who naturally has slim hips and never has to worry about them is lucky indeed.

And she is especially lucky at this particular time when frocks that pinch across at either hip and are left perfectly flat at the front and back are becoming more and more fashionable. We are told that the fall will usher in frocks that follow this flat front and back line, or else are left perfectly straight down to the knees, where they flare out by means of a cleverly-inserted circular section or frill.

This means, certainly, that the flat, slim hips of youth are the hips to be desired.

This may be sad news to the woman who has left her youthful years behind, and with them the slim lines for which all the frocks of today seem to be modeled.

If you don't possess the flat front and back line, however, you will be much wiser to spend your time in acquiring it rather than in moaning over the fact that you don't look well in the new frocks that are being shown.

I'm going to give you an exercise that's excellent to remove the superfluous fat from your hips and model them down to the lines you love to own.

You will find this interesting to try, and if you're a bit awkward at it at first the contest will be the more interesting, for you're sure to improve after a little practice.

You should have a small footstool upon which to stand, as the exercise calls for standing upon it with one foot. You may need to have a chair near, at first, so you can steady yourself by placing one hand upon it.

The exercise is this: Stand erect upon your footstool, one hand down at your side and the other resting upon the chair back at your side, if you need it.

Now begin swinging with your left leg. Swing it as far up forward as you can and as far back as you can.

Of course you swing it free from the stool, and the fact that you have more room to bend your toe down and stretch your instep makes the exercise doubly beneficial.

Swing back and forth with a free movement from your hip, counting when your leg is far out in front and when it is far out at the back. Keep this up for about 15 counts.

Then shift your weight to your left foot, and swing your right leg the same number of counts.

When you learn to keep your balance well without undue strain, you can dispense with the chair and simply swing your leg back and forth, your hand on your hips.

If possible you should go through this exercise before you go to bed at night and again when you get up in the morning.

Be faithful in the practice of it, and you will find that your hips are gradually diminishing in measurement. You will find that a free swinging of the leg exercises those muscles that otherwise would not be exercised in the usual day's activity.

The more exercise you can take, the better for your hip slenderness, and for the becomingness of new fall frocks.

FROM NOW ON

A Continued Story.

Dave Henderson studied the other's face complacently. The man was not as old as Nicolo Capriano; the man's hair was still black and shone with oil, and in features he was not Nicolo Capriano at all; but somehow it was Nicolo Capriano, only in another incarnation perhaps. He nodded his head. He was not sorry to learn that The Iron Tavern was ultra-exclusive!

"That's too bad," he said quietly. "I've come a long way—from a friend of yours. Perhaps that may make some difference?"

"A friend?" Dago George was discreetly interested.

"Nicolo Capriano," said Dave Henderson.

Dago George leaned suddenly forward, staring into Dave Henderson's eyes.

"What!" he exclaimed. "What is that you say? Nicolo Capriano!" He caught up the dress-suit case from the floor, and caught Dave Henderson's arm and pulled him forward into the room, and closed the door behind them. "You come from Nicolo Capriano, you say?"

Ah, yes, my friend, that is different; that is very different. There may still be some rooms here, eh? Ha, ha! Yes, yes!"

"You may possibly already have heard something from him about me," said Dave Henderson. "Barry Lynch is the name."

Dago George shook his head.

"Not a word. It is long, very long, since I have heard from Nicolo Capriano. But I do not forget him—no one forgets Nicolo Capriano. And you have come from Nicolo, eh? You have some message then—eh, my friend?"

Dave Henderson extended the old bomb king's letter.

Dago George motioned to a chair, as he ripped the envelope open.

"You will excuse, while I read it—yes?" he murmured, already engrossed in its contents.

Dave Henderson, from the proffered chair, looked around the room. It was blatantly a combination of sleeping room and office. In one corner was a bed; against the wall facing the door, there was a safe; and an old roll-top desk flanked the safe on the other side of the only window that the room possessed.

His eyes, from their cursory survey of his surroundings, reverted to Dago George. The man had folded up the letter, and was stretching out his hands effusively.

"Ah, it is good!" Dago George ejaculated. "Yes, yes! Anything—anything that I can do for you is already as good as done. I say that from my heart. You are Barry Lynch—yes? And you come from the old master? Well, that is enough. A room! You may be sure there is a room! And now—eh—you have not perhaps dined yet? And what else is there? It is long, very long, since I have heard from the old master."

Dave Henderson laughed.

"There is nothing else—and not even that," he said. "There was a dining-car on the train tonight. There's not a thing, except to show me my room and let me turn in."

"But, yes!" exclaimed Dago George. "Yes, that, of course! But wait! The old master! It is long since I have heard from him. He says great things of you; and so you, too, are a friend of Nicolo Capriano. Well, then, it is an occasion, this meeting! We will celebrate it! A little bottle of wine, eh? A little bottle of wine!"

Dave Henderson shook his head. "No," he said, and smiled. "As a matter of fact, I'm rather ill; and, if you don't mind, I'll hit the hay tonight pronto."

Dago George raised his hands protestingly.

"But what would Nicolo Capriano say to me for such hospitality as that?" he cried. "So, if not a bottle, then at least a little glass, eh? You will not refuse! We will drink his health—the health of Nicolo Capriano! Eh? Wait! Wait!"

And he rushed pell-mell from the room, as though his life depended upon his errand.

Dave Henderson laughed again. The man with his volubility and effervescence amused him.

Dago George was back in a few minutes with a tray and two glasses of wine. He offered one of the glasses with an elaborate bow to Dave Henderson.

"It is the best in my poor house," he said, and held the other glass aloft to the light. "To Nicolo Capriano!"

To the old master! To the master of them all!" he cried—and drank, rolling his wine on his tongue like a connoisseur.

Dave Henderson drained his glass.

"To Nicolo Capriano!" he echoed heartily.

"Good!" said Dago George brightly. "One more little glass? No? You are sure? Well, you have said that you are tired—eh? Well, then, to make you comfortable! Come along with me!" He picked up the dress-suit case, opened the door, and led the way into the hall. He was still talking as he mounted the stairs.

"There will be many things for us to speak about, eh? But that will be for tomorrow. We are perhaps all birds of a feather—eh—or Nicolo Capriano perhaps would not have sent you here? Well, well—tomorrow, my friend, if you care to, or you remain silent, as you wish. Is it not so? That is what Nicolo Capriano writes—and it is enough." He paused at the second-story landing. "You see?" he said, waving his hand around the dimly lighted passage. "Little private dining-rooms! But there is no business tonight. Another flight, my friend, and perhaps we shall find better accommodations there."

It was as the other had said. Partially opened doors showed the three or four small rooms, that opened off the hall, to be fitted up as dining rooms. Dave Henderson made no comment, as he followed the other up the next flight of stairs. He was tired. He had been telling himself lazily so from the moment he had taken the taxi. He was acutely aware of it now. It was the relaxation, of course—but he had become of a sudden infernally sleepy.

Banishing Fear Will Add Years to Person's Life

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D., United States Senator from New York.

Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

JUST now I saw a little gray bird alight on a post, no more than five feet from where I am writing. I paused in my work, keeping perfectly still, to watch him.

His eye was so keen that the tiniest movement attracted him. His hearing was so acute that the slightest sound caught his ear. His feathers were smooth and glossy. He was so full of energy that to keep still for four seconds was impossible.

He hopped up and down, turned around, dipped his head, snapped his bill, twisted his neck and performed feats which would do credit to a renowned athlete.

The state of health of that little bird is the result of a simple, perfectly regulated life. He never stays out at night. He never remains in bed in the morning. He never goes on a spree of any sort. He has out-of-door life all the time, never poisoning himself by an evening in a vilely-ventilated place. He eats when he feels like it and keeps trim by constant exercise.

Of course human beings cannot live as the birds do. They have the demands of society and the problems of domestic support to consider. But the fact is, we could live more as the birds do, if we only thought we could.

We get all fussed up over trifling things. Instead of hopping away, or taking flight, we sit down and listen to the gossip of some social hawk. We do this, that and the other thing watching the flight of the hawk who goes soaring in great circles over the neighborhood, seeking to discover everything going on in the community.

We watch the hawk, in sudden swoop to catch in bill and talons some helpless social rabbit or chicken. When the hawk's work is finished there is left nothing but bones and tendons.

We live in fear of the social hawks. We do this, that and the other thing for fear we may be swooped down upon if we do not conform to the hawk rule.

Fear is the curse of all existence. It is a bane of animal life as it is of human life. But animals deal with this problem better than we do. Most of them run away from terrifying things. We human beings are afraid, but also we are afraid to run.

Because we are afraid we cringe, we hold our natural impulses in subjection, we suffer such shock of our delicate nerves that all our functions are disturbed.

The bird laughs at the thing he fears. He flies over it—he rises above it.

Fear produces disease. No man is normal who is afraid. His digestion will not proceed. His sleep is disturbed. These disturbances in their turn cause trouble.

Stand a lot of dominoes on end. Strike the first of the row and, one by one, the whole lot is thrown down. Fear strikes the first blow which ends when health is impaired and vitality is gone.

Go forward, keen-eyed and unafraid. Fearlessness will add years to your life.

Queen Mary's Love, Her Treasure Chest Frugality

This is the second of a series of articles dealing with the private life of Queen Mary of England. It reveals her Majesty as a shrewd woman, frugal to the point of being called stingy by her servants.

By a Lady of the English Court.

LONDON, Aug. 11.—Throughout the seven palaces of which she is mistress, Queen Mary has a reputation for stinginess. The Queen is, in fact, a little "near." The servants of Buckingham Palace have a saying: "Queen Alexandra is worth ten of Queen Mary." In the time of Queen Mary's predecessor, the upper servants grew well-to-do from the perquisites they were allowed. Half-used bits of soap and candle ends were their own; "extras" of food and clothing were carelessly allowed them. Today, the litter of all the great households is regularly collected and hoarded or sold. Food and clothing are rationed under a rigid scheme.

I think the reasons of the Queen's parsimony are two, and both, as a matter of fact, do her credit. One is the memory of her pinched girlhood, when she was taught to help with the housework in the simple villa in Florence, where her parents, the Duke and Duchess of Teck, lived on straitened means. The other was a reform, absolutely necessary, in the management of the royal households with which the Queen was faced when she came to the throne, and which she accepted as a duty.

Queen Victoria hated to part with good and trusted servants. Throughout her long reign all servants were kept on; even when they had grown too old for their work. If fresh help was needed, younger people were hired. The palace staffs grew unwieldy, not to say costly. King Edward and Queen Alexandra lacked the time, in their brief reign, to change things. Upon Queen Mary's accession she found at Windsor a huge colony of old and middle-aged and young retainers, all living at the royal expense in a state of great confusion as to their exact duties. Something had to be done, especially as Parliament had greatly reduced the royal income, and threatened further cuts.

Servants Think Queen Stingy.

It has required years of tact and decision to make the necessary changes and Queen Mary has worked hard and faithfully at the task. Today the management of the palaces is a model of business efficiency. Queen Mary has a reputation for stinginess among the royal servants, which is fairly unimportant, but she has the admiration of scores of members of the court circle for a well-done job.

The truth is, I think, that Queen Mary has no romantic feeling whatever for the vast routine of pageantry and etiquette in which she moves, but, having accepted a central place in it as her life work, she supervises with economy and dispatch and fidelity, like a loyal woman.

Once she hated and feared the cumbersome etiquette of courts, as a story of her childhood shows. The little girl was met flying across the lawn in Florence one day when Uncle (the Emperor of Austria) was expected to visit. "What are you running from?" asked her friend. "From etiquette!" answered little Princess Mary. The frightened bit of royalty hid for hours in the garden. She knew well what a dead-weight of formality the call of an Emperor would bring.

Her own tastes are domestic and feminine, as becomes a housekeeper, even a glorified one. She takes no interest in athletic games and she detests gambling and betting. She also cordially dislikes cards, although she sometimes plays a game of "patience" in the evening. Her favorite exercise is walking; she goes for a constitutional every day. She prefers motoring to driving because, she says, a motor car "gets you there." Gardening is really her favorite pursuit. When she goes to the theater she chooses plays with a pleasant love interest, plays whose heroes and heroines "live happily ever afterward." For the modern problem play she has a strong aversion. She is not above a good variety show and she will go anywhere to hear good music.

Has Kept Her Love Letters. Like lesser mortals, she is very sentimental over some of her personal belongings. Just before their marriage the King himself bought in Paris a beautiful Louis XVI cabinet as a "love-gift" for his fiancée. It now stands in Queen Mary's boudoir. Here she keeps all her love letters, as well as her mother's letters to her and her own to her mother. The first tooth of the Prince of Wales is there in a silver setting, as well as a "curl of Mary's hair," carefully labeled and tied with blue ribbon. The baby's rattle, sucking ring and the little shoes of Prince John, the Queen's son who died in infancy, are all locked away and occasionally shown to visitors.

Here also are packets of childish epistles written in round, unformed handwriting to "Dear Mother"—letters of her own children to herself. On the walls are etchings and water colors, the amateur work of members of her family. An album filled with graphed photographs of men she has met. Among the table are miniature own children, painted Massey.

It is not generally known that the King insists on seeing all the Queen's dresses, and how heavy the responsibility consented to the alliance.

Interview with the Queen was awkward. Everyone knows that it is difficult for a girl to meet the father of the man she has agreed to marry. How much more difficult when that mother is also the Queen!

Queen Mary settled the matter to her customary tact. She showed the embarrassed girl in another arms and said: "You had seen it. Only a day ago she wore a love-let in the first time in the Queen's wardrobe. The King was not particularly fond of it."

young have made the Queen especially tender toward young women who step into the inner circle of royalty. She herself, of course, was of royal blood, and in her day royalty had no choice as to wives or husbands. But the history of her first engagement to George's brother has been well-nigh forgotten. Queen Victoria had, from the first, selected her to be the consort of the future King of England. But the old Queen was by no means generous in the allowance she made to her cousins, the Duke and Duchess of Teck, though she hoarded money for her own children.

The little Princess Mary was in 1883 moved with her Teck parents, first to Switzerland, then to a simple villa in Florence, Italy, where the entire family did without luxuries of any sort. The Duchess taught her daughter to dust the drawing room chairs, to tidy up the house and to cook. The Queen is still very proud of the omelette and the butter that she knows how to make. She brought up her own Princess Mary to be as good a housekeeper as she is.

"Little Mary has enough to do," wrote the Duchess of Teck to a friend in those years, "to learn obedience, to attend to her lessons and, above all, to grow without attending stupid parties." Dissipation of the sort that the children of the rich are often allowed was absolutely forbidden.

First Engaged to King's Brother.

When Princess Mary "came out" at White Lodge, in England, a few years later, it was with difficulty that enough money was spared from the parental income to pay for her court dresses, her feathers, her lace and satins.

Already she knew the "Wales children"—the Duke of Clarence and the Duke of York, children of Edward VII, then Prince of Wales. Princess Mary's childhood was punctuated by visits to their nursery garden at Marlborough House. Alas, it was the Duke of Clarence who was then the heir apparent, and it was not the Duke of Clarence that the little Princess liked best of the two brothers. True to her upbringing, however, she accepted her lot and was affianced to the elder brother. When, only a year after the engagement was announced the Duke of Clarence died—shall I say "providentially"?—Queen Victoria said to her: "Never mind, my dear, you will be the Queen of England yet, leave it all to me."

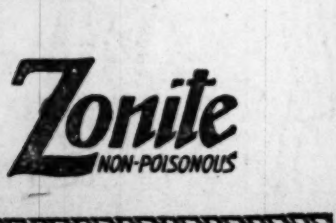

The veteran royal diplomatist managed it. Within a year of her fiancé's death, Princess Mary was betrothed to his younger brother, who is George V today. At her marriage she wore a gown that she should think very ugly now—silver and white brocade, fashioned in the hideous spoolbill corsege, with thistles, shamrocks and roses embroidered in gold.

Today the King is the first to own that he "depends on his wife for nearly everything." She is behind every wise and sensible decision he makes. Perhaps the reason is that fate allowed her to marry the man she loved after all. (Copyright, 1923.)

How You May Easily Keep Your Teeth Really Beautiful

By LUCREZIA BORI

NO woman ever became a beauty who had unattractive teeth. Think this over. Of all the beauties of renown, either in society or on the stage, not one has ever been known to have unlovely teeth.

All of us cannot be blessed with teeth that are as straight and white and beautiful as little grains of white corn. But the fact that women whose professions demand teeth of at least passing beauty always seem to achieve such teeth, must prove to us that pretty teeth can be cultivated through unflagging effort.

In these days, when school and free clinics stress the importance of straight, attractive teeth, we feel that wonderful strides are being made toward health and mouth beauty.

The shape of your teeth has everything to do with the appearance of your mouth, you know. If your mouth is to attain its best proportions in relation to your other features, it should contain all its required number of teeth, with each tooth in its proper place.

Missing teeth change the contour of the mouth, especially in a young person. A child's first teeth should be carefully cared for, as losing the first teeth prematurely affects the durability of the second ones.

You must brush your teeth at least twice a day, and if it is possible you should brush them three times a day. Some people naturally feel uncomfortable after eating unless they brush their teeth and feel sure their mouths are sweet and

TILLERS OF THE SOIL. HE soldier goes upon his way with fiery steeds that prance, to martial music brave and gay, with pomp and circumstance. The people greet him with acclaim, by countryside and town; his nation gives him deathless fame and spreads his fair renown. His name is heard on every tongue and men on every hand believe his praises should be sung for all he gives his land. It's true, the soldier earns it all—the love, the trust, the praise, for first he puts his country's call through all his youthful days. But there's another one who stands high up in honor's ranks; his lot is poor and rough his hands and few accord him thanks. From early dawn till set of sun his back is bent with toil, his many tasks are never done, the man who tills the soil. Yet, though the multitude forget and never think to pay the weighty measure of their debt, he gladly goes his way. For he has joys no others know, he's kin to sun and rain; he helps the tiny seedlings grow, he reaps the golden grain. While changing seasons dawn and die, to him full charms the glow of gold October's sky, the laughing winds of spring. And as he tends his flocks and herds and bends above his plow, he learns the message of the birds that flit from bough to bough. The chatter of the finch and jay, the rapture of the lark, these lend their brightness to his day, their cheer from dawn till dark. To martial tunes and cheering throng the soldier goes to toll; but nature sings her sweetest song to him who tills the soil.

Children's Bedtime Story

By Thornton W. Burgess

MRS. HAPPY JACK peeped out of their summer home to watch Happy Jack. She looked a wee bit anxious. Truth to tell, she was anxious. She felt that Happy Jack was doing a foolish thing.

"There never is any use in taking risks one doesn't have to," said Mrs. Happy Jack to herself. "If people didn't do foolish things of this kind it would save a lot of trouble and worry for others. Happy Jack might have stayed in here with me just as well as not. Instead of that he is going out to tempt Redtail to try and catch him. I guess he is smart enough to keep out of Redtail's claws, but just the same I think it a foolish thing to do."

Meanwhile Happy Jack had seated himself on a branch above his home, and in plain sight of Redtail the Hawk, who was circling high over head. He pretended not to be paying attention to anything. He pretended that he was just sitting there for a sun bath. But all the time he kept an eye on Redtail far above him in the blue, blue sky.

"I hope that old sinner will try to catch me," said he to himself. "Nothing would tickle me more than to disappoint him. He thinks he's very clever. He thinks I don't know that he has been watching us ever since we built that new home. It is time for him to learn better."

Meanwhile Redtail the Hawk was chuckling to himself. Looking down from way up in the blue, blue sky he had seen Happy Jack come out of his summer home in the big beech tree and scramble up near the top. Now he was sitting taking a sun bath right in plain sight, and appearing not to be noticing anything. Redtail swung a little lower. Still Happy Jack appeared as if he hadn't the slightest idea that an enemy was anywhere about. Redtail decided that he was near enough to swoop. His eyes grew suddenly intent and fierce. He shot down with his great claws stretched to seize Happy Jack. Now, Happy Jack had all the figures of the pharaohs and the Egyptian gods.

In ancient times in Egypt it is said that a patient paid his doctor during the first few days of his illness, after which, if he did not recover, the doctor paid the patient until he made him well.

The sandal, a modern variation of which is now popular with the flapper in deference to the Egyptian vogue, was the forerunner of the shoe. Most of the early peoples wore sandals. To be truly Egyptian in foot fashions, however, the young women of today would have to parade Broadway and Fifth avenue barefoot, inasmuch as the subjects of the Pharaohs usually went barefooted.

Please See How combating film beautifies the teeth

You'll be surprised Here is a test which will amaze and delight you. It will tell you why whiter teeth are seen everywhere today, and show you how to get them. It will show how to bring to yourself and your family cleaner, safer, prettier teeth.

Why teeth cloud You feel on your teeth a viscous film. Much of it resists the tooth brush, clings and stays. Soon that film discolors, then forms dingy coats. That is how teeth lose beauty.

Film is also the teeth's great enemy. It holds food substance which ferments and forms acid. It holds the acid in contact with the teeth to cause decay.

Germs breed by millions in it. They, with tartar, are the chief cause of pyorrhea. In the old days few escaped these troubles caused by film.

The Man on the Sandbox

WHADDAYA MEAN CRAZY?

THE Pampus Bull is wonderful. His wallop is a daisy; To place a bet upon their pet The Argentines are crazy. In fact the experts all agree That they're as crazy as can be.

They have a hunch that Firpo's punch. Should not be lightly taken; And if at Jack he gets one crack, He'll come home with the bacon. And they have not the slightest doubt The Bull will flatten Dempsey out.

And that is how they view the row Between those gladiators. Their faith in Lou, perhaps, is due To trimming second raters. Upon their man at any rate They want to bet the family plate.

But Jack is not perturbed a jot. He doesn't care a tu-pence; He says he'll hand that guy a swat And give him his compeance. At any rate the fight should be Worth going many miles to see.

QUITE SO.

The Giants have purchased a rookie from Hutchinson, Kan., named Moses Solomon. If he isn't a wise guy there is nothing in names.

Jack Dempsey says he never will give Willis a match. Put that in your pipe and smoke it, Harry.

At that there are some people who think that the only match Jack ever intended giving Harry was a kidding match.

We are informed by genealogists that Luis Firpo is of very ancient lineage. They trace his ancestry back to the original Adam family, whose collateral branches, if placed end to end, would reach 4,000,000 times around the earth.

COTTONWOOD?

It is reported that Firpo sleeps on the floor of his room. But it probably isn't a hardwood floor.

Of course, if Firpo prefers to sleep on the floor, that's his privilege. But we should think that a guy preparing for a prize fight would prefer a box-mattress.

"Move to Release Ghandi De-feated."

Whatsa matter, somebody refuse to waive on him?

HELP JAPAN.

CAN you spare a little cash? Help Japan.

She has had an awful smash. Help Japan.

Anything that you can spare Will be welcomed over there. So, of course, we'll give our share To help Japan.

"Firpo Had No Fear of Weinert." Indicating that Charley wasn't the guy that put the "fear" in Firpo.

FAVORITE STORIES

By Irvin S. Cobb

WITH AN EYE TO DETAILS.

RECENTLY, in this column, appeared a story relating to the late Sir Herbert Tree, distinguished English actor. Here is another one about Tree.

Usually Tree acted as his own stage director and sometimes as his own producer. One time he was mounting a play with a large cast and an elaborate scenic investiture. One of the lesser members of the company, a young actor newly graduated into the profession and of a fussy temperament, was exceedingly anxious to acquit himself creditably.

Through zeal he became rather a nuisance. One day when Sir Herbert was directing an especially tricky piece of stage technique, the pestiferous novice sidled up.

"Sir Herbert," he began, "might I interrupt you for one moment? The matters of my costume and makeup have been giving me considerable concern. The script does not state the exact age of the character, but the business of the part and the lines themselves lead me to believe that I am supposed to be a person approaching middle age. Now, the question arises whether I should play him as a man about 42 years old or as a man 43 years old. What would you say, sir?"

"I should play him," said Tree, "as a man of exactly 42 years and 8 months."

Official Inquiry Discloses That Early Estimates of Loss of Life in Tokio's Poorest District Have Not Been Exaggerated—Flames Trapped Many.

RUINS ARE REPORTED
FILLED WITH DEAD

Partial Street Car Service Is Resumed in Capital—Typhus and Other Epidemics
Have Appeared in Two Hospitals.

By the Associated Press.
TOKIO, Sept. 11.—Investigation
by the authorities of the Honjo district, that part of Tokio which is hemmed in by the sea and Sumida River and by canals, showed that the previous estimates of loss of life
there have not been exaggerated.
The residents of this, the poorest quarter of the capital, were trapped
by the flames which followed the earthquake. The ruins throughout the district are crowded with dead,
the majority of whom, it is believed,
were suffocated. In many instances it has been discovered that the clothing of the victims was not even burned.

In various parts of Tokio thousands of bodies are being stacked for cremation. Six big emergency crematoriums have been established and the cremation of bodies is proceeding night and day.

Up to yesterday 23,000 bodies had been recovered in Yokohama. Of the 150,000 homeless in that city at least half are said to have departed.
The condition of those who remained is improving.

Tokio Street Cars Resume.
The street cars in Tokio have resumed operation from the financial district to the western suburbs. Temporary barracks to care for the homeless are being erected in various parts of the city.

Brig-Gen. Frank McCoy of the United States Army has arrived and begun the assembling of Filipino residents in Tokio who desire to return to the Philippines. Most of them are students, however, and so far few applications have been made to return home.

Typhus and other epidemics have appeared in the Okubo and Hiroo
hospitals and in the conductors' quarters of the Aoyama tramway, where 500 sick and wounded have been collected. Many of the earthquake victims who were disinfected were removed to a temporary hospital established at the Ueno exposition site.

It is said that approximately 100, 000 refugees are leaving the capital
each day.

World Stabilize Finances.
It is announced that the heads of various Japanese insurance companies have decided to pay their full insurance losses, not availing themselves of the earthquake clauses in their policies.

The banks have asked the Government to advance 1,500,000,000 yen in order to stabilize the financial situation.

Reconstruction, reorganization and recovery are now the watchwords of the Japanese people. The newspapers that have resumed publication
are printing lavish editorials of gratitude for the world-wide sympathy
that has been accorded Japan.

Food Situation Greatly Relieved.
Rail Traffic Restored.

By the Associated Press.
LONDON, Sept. 11.—The Japanese Embassy here is in receipt of advice from the Foreign Office in Tokio, stating in effect that the general situation in the earthquake area is ameliorating. Large quantities of rice and other foodstuffs are arriving and the food situation has been greatly relieved. Railroad traffic has been completely restored, except on a portion of the Tokaido line, and in a few days complete recovery will be effected on the telephone system.
Although the chief centers of business in Tokio and Yokohama have been completely destroyed, order is being maintained.

Victims of Quake Reported Dead and Maimed.

By the Associated Press.
LONDON, Sept. 11.—Refugees from Japan, brought to Shanghai by the Canadian Government, have reported that foreign visitors to the disaster area were "shocked," says a Shanghai dispatch cited by Reuters. All of the visitors of whom any news was received from Japan, it was stated,
